COMPARISON OF INDUS VALLEY AND MESOPOTAMIAN CIVILIZATION

IVC

Seems to be a matriarchal society, evident from so many statues of female deities

- There was no special places of worship. They might worship nature.
- From evidences such as seals, statues etc. indicate that Indus Valley might be having a polytheistic religion.

Theory of Kingship or a ruler class has not been proved for Indus Valley.

SOCIETY

RELIGION

ADMIN

MESOPOTAMIA CIVILIZATION

More a patriarchal society, one in which the men were far more powerful than the women.

Mesopotamia also, polytheism was present but the Mesopotamians also built temple for worship.

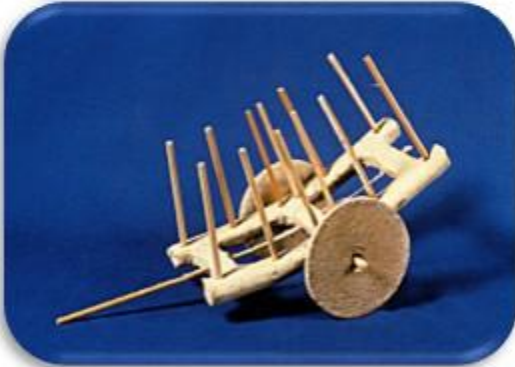

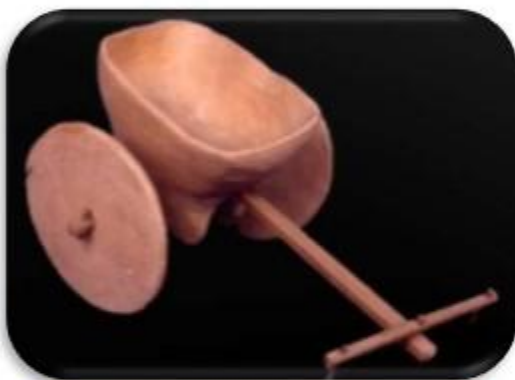

Ruled by a priest King, who was considered to be divine. That King solved disputes, led administration and had an army too.

Great progress in all spheres of economic activity such as agriculture, industry and crafts and trade.

IVC- STAGES OF EVOLUTION

INDUS VALLEY CIVILIZATION

(3300-1300 BC)

DECLINE OF IVC- CONTROVERSIAL

*It is controversial as there are different views as expressed by historians.
The major controversy was whether it ended suddenly or gradually.*

1

Supporting evidence was that dead bodies were found at Great bath which suggest that war had taken place between IVC and Aryans.

CONTROVERSY OVER ARYAN INVASION

- But this theory is negated as - there is gap of 250years between decline of IVC and Aryan invasion.
- And there are no evidences of weapons and mass burials

INDUS VALLEY CIVILIZATION

(3300-1300 BC)

DECLINE OF IVC- CONTROVERSIAL

2

Supporting evidence show that Mohanjodaro and Chanhudaro flooded 7 and 3 times respectively.

CONTROVERSY OVER FLOOD THEORY

But theory is not acceptable—

1. Firstly, IVC people has knowledge of controlling floods.
2. Secondly, there is no chance of great floods causing destruction to whole civilization.

INDUS VALLEY CIVILIZATION

(3300-1300 BC)

DECLINE OF IVC- CONTROVERSIAL

Supporting Evidence was that IVC comes under EQ prone zone.

3

CONTROVERSY OVER EQ THEORY

1. But there is no chance that EQ causes destruction to whole civilization at the same time.
2. Further it is found that some of the structure were very much intact suggesting that no EQ has taken place.

INDUS VALLEY CIVILIZATION

(3300-1300 BC)

DECLINE OF IVC- CONTROVERSIAL

4

- It is one of the most acceptable theory.
- It says that there was less rainfall from 1800 BC due to deforestation.
- Moreover River Saraswati has changed its course causing shortage of water.

THEORY OF ECOLOGICAL / HYDROLOGICAL CHANGES

- Further Thar desert expanded increasing in salinity of soil. Making the soil not suitable for cultivation.
- Thus brings us to the conclusion that IVC was deserted rather than destroyed.

So it is proved beyond doubt that civilization gradually faded away in course of time.
