2

PARTITION OF CHINA INTO ECONOMIC ZONES

- Thus, the western countries established their supremacy in China.
- China was partitioned into many economic zones controlled by western powers.
- This is known as “the cutting of the Chinese Melon” (ie., cutting China into many pieces).

TAIPING REBELLION

- 1 The failure of Manchu dynasty led to the Taiping Rebellion (1851-1864) in China.
- 2 It was led by Hung Hsiu-chūan.
- 3 The rebellion was crushed.
- 4 China was controlled by queen Tzu hsi from 1860 to 1908 till her death.
- 5 Tzu hsi's reactionary rule led to revolutionary movements in China.

SINO-JAPANESE WAR

- In 1894-1895 a war broke out between China and Japan.
- This is known as the First Sino-Japanese War.
- The war was fought for the control of Korea.
- China was defeated in this war.

▪ Chinese people were unhappy because of following:

- 1 Economic Exploitation by Western powers.
- 2 The extraterritorial right granted to foreigners
- 3 China's humiliating defeats in Opium wars and against Japan.

4 Corruption, inefficiency of their own royal government.

5 They resented the work of Christian missionaries, blaming them for harming traditional Chinese ceremonies and family relations.

SINO-JAPANESE WAR

- 6 Missionaries pressured local officials to side with Christian converts in local lawsuits and property disputes.
- 7 This led to formation of a secret organization known as “Yihetuan” (Society of Righteousness and Harmony). The foreigners called them “Boxers”.

This led to a Chinese revolt known as the Boxer Rebellion against the foreign domination of China.

SINO-JAPANESE WAR

BOXER REBELLION

- 1 Boxers blamed foreigners for all the ills in China. They started seizing /destroying properties of foreigners, Christian missionaries and Chinese converts.
- 2 The movement took form of a violent rebellion.
- 3 Although the Boxers were officially denounced, they were secretly supported by many of the royal court.
- 4 British, French, Japanese, Russian, German, and Americans sent their troops to curb this rebellion.
- 5 Ultimately this rebellion was also suppressed with the help of the western countries.
- 6 The Result is Western powers got following:
 - Fines from China for a period of 40 years
 - More trade concessions
 - Right to station their troops in Beijing.

DR. SUN YAT SEN

1 During this time an intellectual emerged as the undisputed leader of China.

2 He was Dr. Sun Yat Sen. He is known as the “Morning Star” of China.

3 He mobilized young revolutionaries and started the 1911 Revolution in China.

4 This revolution ended the Manchu rule in China.

5 New flag, new calendar were adopted.

6 China for the first time became a republic.

7 Yuan Shih Kai became the President of the Chinese Republic.

9 Kuomintang Party:

- Following this once again Dr. Sun Yat Sen assumed control of China. He started the Kuomintang Party.
- With the Russian help he wanted to introduce reforms in China.
- It was during this period the Chinese Communist Party of China was started.
- Mao Tse Tung and Chou-en-lai were the original founding members of the Communist Party of China

CHIANG KAI SHEK

1 In 1924 Dr. Sun Yat Sen passed away. The leadership of the Kuomintang party was assumed by Chiang Kai Shek.

2 In the beginning there was an understanding between the Kuomintang and the Communists.

3 But, soon both became rivals. Chiang wanted to exterminate Mao's Communist Party.

4 Mao retired to northern China. It is known as the Long March.

5 There the Communists established their control.

CIVIL WAR

1 In 1945 a civil war broke out between the Communists and the Kuomintang.

2 Finally, Mao established the People's Republic of China in October 1949.

3 Chiang Kai Shek fled to Taiwan, which is known as Nationalist China.

4 During the Cold War Era the USA supported the Nationalist China.

5 Hence, the Nationalist China became a member of the UNO until 1971.

6 The Peoples Republic of China was admitted as a member in the UNO only in 1971.

MAO TSE TUNG

- He introduced the economic reform known as the Great Leap Forward.
- In 1966, Mao launched the Cultural Revolution.
- During the Cultural Revolution those who were against Mao were removed from the Communist Party and imprisoned.

DENG XIAOPING

- 1 After Mao's death in 1976 and the Gang of Four were arrested.
- 2 Following this Deng Xiaoping quickly captured power from Mao's successor Hua Guofeng.
- 3 Deng introduced many economic reforms including the relaxation of government control over the Chinese economy.
- 4 Thus China moved from a planned economy to a mixed economy.
- 5 As a result of the changing economic scene China formally joined the World Trade Organization in 2001.
