

LIVE

NEWSPAPER

16th October, 2017

ITEM WISE EDITORIALS

42nd WEEK

IRAN-USA... RAMIFICATIONS

UPSC CSE – GS II

GS II... EFFECT OF POLICIES AND POLITICS OF DEVELOPED AND DEVELOPING COUNTRIES ON INDIA'S INTERESTS.

Learning Space

LIVE

NEWSPAPER EDITORIALS ... DISCUSSION

16th OCTOBER, 2017

1

On dangerous footing

By undermining the Iran nuclear deal, Donald Trump endangers the non-proliferation goal.

By refusing to certify the Iran nuclear deal, which curbed its nuclear programme in return for lifting global sanctions, U.S. President Donald Trump has put the two-year-old pact on dangerous footing. Under American law, the administration has to certify that Iran is technically in compliance with the deal that was struck between Iran and six other world powers, including the U.S., every 90 days. All other signatories, as well as the UN, insist that Iran is fully complying. But Mr. Trump, who had during his election campaign threatened to tear up the deal and as President described it as the "worst agreement in American diplomatic history", disavowed it days before the next certification was due. From its early days, his administration has taken a hawkish line towards Iran, imposing new sanctions on its missile programme and joining hands with its regional rivals in West Asia. But even as he with Congress disagrees, he did not sure if the deal. Instead, he pushed the ball to U.S. lawmakers. The Republican-controlled Congress now has 60 days to decide whether sanctions should be reimposed. It is unlikely to do any. Going radical in the near term as any sweeping legislation would require bipartisan support in the Senate. Nonetheless, the damage Mr. Trump's decision has done to the agreement and to American diplomacy in general is huge. It appears to be driven by political calculations rather than a realistic reassessment of the agreement, which, by its own standards, is working.

With the withdrawal from the certification, Mr. Trump has put the deal in the coffin of an Iran-U.S. reset that had appeared possible during the Obama days. Now the threat of sanctions will hang over the nuclear deal. This is a boon for hardliners in Iran, who have suffered a political setback in recent years. The deal became possible only because the reformists and moderates rallied behind President Hassan Rouhani's agenda, despite strong opposition from the Iranian deep state. Even Mr. Rouhani, who promised a solution to the nuclear crisis, got the deal done and won re-election this year, will now find it difficult to mobilise public opinion behind the agreement in the light of continued U.S. hostility. The larger question is, what kind of example is the U.S. setting for the global non-proliferation regime? The Iran deal, despite its shortcomings, was a shining example of the capacity of world powers to come together and sort out a complex issue diplomatically. It assumed greater significance given the nuclear wars and chaos in West Asia. It should have set a model in addressing other nuclear crises. Instead, by going after Iran even though it complies with the agreement, the U.S. is damaging its own reputation.

1 On dangerous footing

Date : 16th October, 2017

By undermining the Iran nuclear deal, Donald Trump endangers the non-proliferation goal. By refusing to certify the Iran nuclear deal, which curbed its nuclear programme in return for lifting global sanctions, U.S. President Donald Trump has put the two-year-old pact on dangerous footing. Under American law, the administration has to certify that Iran is technically in compliance with the deal that was struck between Iran and six other world powers, including the U.S., every 90 days. All other signatories, as well as the UN, insist that Iran is fully complying. But Mr. Trump, who had during his election campaign threatened to tear up the deal and as President continued to call it the “worst agreement in American diplomatic history”, disavowed it days before the next certification was due. From its early days, his administration has taken a hawkish line towards Iran, imposing new sanctions on its missile programmes and joining hands with its regional rivals in West Asia. But even as he withdrew certification, he did not scrap the deal. Instead, he passed the buck to U.S. lawmakers. The Republican-controlled Congress now has 60 days to decide whether sanctions should be reimposed. It is unlikely to do anything radical in the near term as any sweeping legislation would require bipartisan support in the Senate. Nonetheless, the damage Mr. Trump’s decision has done to the agreement and to American diplomacy in general is huge. He appears to be driven by political calculations rather than a realistic assessment of the agreement, which, by its own standards, is working.

...Contd.

1 On dangerous footing

THE HINDU
INDIA'S NATIONAL NEWSPAPER SINCE 1878
Date : 16th October, 2017

...Contd.

With the withdrawal from the certification, Mr. Trump has put the final nail in the coffin of an Iran-U.S. reset that had appeared possible during the Obama days. Now the threat of sanctions will hang over the nuclear deal. This is a boon for hardliners in Iran, who have suffered a political setback in recent years. The deal became possible only because the reformists and moderates rallied behind President Hassan Rouhani's agenda, despite strong opposition from the Iranian deep state. Even Mr. Rouhani, who promised a solution to the nuclear crisis, got the deal done and won re-election this year, will now find it difficult to mobilise public opinion behind the agreement in the light of continued U.S. hostility. The larger question is, what kind of example is the U.S. setting for the global non-proliferation regime? The Iran deal, despite its shortcomings, was a shining example of the capacity of world powers to come together and sort out a complex issue diplomatically. It assumed greater significance given the recent wars and chaos in West Asia. It should have set a model in addressing other nuclear crises. Instead, by going after Iran even though it complies with the agreement, the U.S. is damaging its own reputation.

1

On dangerous footing

By undermining the Iran nuclear deal, Donald Trump endangers the non-proliferation goal

By refusing to certify the Iran nuclear deal, which curbed its nuclear programme in return for lifting global sanctions, U.S. President Donald Trump has put the two-year-old pact on dangerous footing. Under American law, the administration has to certify that Iran is technically in compliance with the deal that was struck between Iran and six other world powers, including the U.S., every 90 days. All other signatories, as well as the UN, insist that Iran is fully complying. But Mr. Trump, who had during his election campaign threatened to tear up the deal and as President continued to call it the "worst agreement in American diplomatic history", disavowed it days before the next certification was due. From its early days, his administration has taken a hawkish line towards Iran, imposing new sanctions on its missile programmes and joining hands with its regional rivals in West Asia. But even as he withdrew certification, he did not scrap the deal. Instead, he passed the buck to U.S. lawmakers. The Republican-controlled Congress now has 60 days to decide whether sanctions should be reimposed. It is unlikely to do anything radical in the near term as any sweeping legislation would require bipartisan support in the Senate. Nonetheless, the damage Mr. Trump's decision has done to the agreement and to American diplomacy in general is huge. He appears to be driven by political calculations rather than a realistic assessment of the agreement, which, by its own standards, is working.

THE HINDU
INDIA'S NATIONAL NEWSPAPER SINCE 1878

Date : 16th October, 2017

IMPORTANT QUESTIONS

ESSAY / MAINS / GD / INTERVIEWS

USA President refused to certify Iran nuclear deal. Discuss its implications for both USA and Iran as well as for India.

TURKEY

AZERBAIJAN

Caspian Sea

TURKMENISTAN

Cyprus

SYRIA

Lebanon

IRAQ

IRAN

AFGHANISTAN

Israel

PAKISTAN

Persian Gulf

SAUDI ARABIA

Gulf of Oman

NEWS REPORT

President Donald Trump announced unveiling a new American Strategy on Iran that could heighten tensions in west Asia.

Donald Trump

SALIENT POINTS

- As he said that he would no longer be certifying the Iran Nuclear Deal for its continuation.
- Terming Iran the world's leading state sponsor of terrorism, Mr. Trump said that, Tehran was in violation of the terms of the agreement.
- Other countries that are party to the agreement do not share that view.

SALIENT POINTS

- According to Mr. Trump, the deal would not stop Iran's Nuclear pursuit.
- In his words, in just a few years, as key restrictions disappear, Iran can sprint towards a rapid Nuclear Weapons breakout.
- He also says that, Iran deal was one of the worst and most one-sided transactions that the United States has ever entered into.

The Onus is on U.S. Congress to decide the next course of action and the Congress will get 60 days to decide whether or not to re-impose sanctions on Iran that were lifted as part of the Nuclear Deal.

IRAN NUCLEAR DEAL

OTHER ASPECTS OF TRUMP'S VIEW POINT

- He termed Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps as ‘terrorist militia.’
- He also linked Iran to a litany of terrorism incidents around the world that targeted the U.S. and its allies.
- Iranian regime harboured high level terrorists including Osama bin Laden’s son.
- He also accused Iran of supporting the Al Qaida, Taliban, Hamas and Hezbollah.
- He also blamed Iran for the civil wars in Syria and Yemen.
- The statement termed Obama’s Iran policy “myopic” and repudiated the U.S policy towards Tehran over the last decade and a half.

OTHER ASPECTS CITED BY DONALD TRUMP

- Ballistic missile development and proliferation.
- Material and financial support for terrorism and extremism.
- Support for the Assad regime's atrocities against the Syrian people.
- Unrelenting hostility towards Israel.
- Cyber-attacks against the USA and Israel.
- Grievous human rights abuses.
- Arbitrary detention of foreigners, including United State's citizens.

The American allies in the region, Israel and Saudi Arabia have been calling for scrapping the deal altogether.

P5 + 1

PERMANENT MEMBERS OF
SECURITY COUNCIL

Security Council

United Nations

USA
UK
CHINA
RUSSIA
FRANCE

+

GERMANY

SALIENT POINTS

- Iran agreed to get rid of 98% of its stockpile of enriched uranium.
- Centrifuges, which are needed to enrich uranium will be reduced from 19,000 to 6,000.
- Enrichment will be stopped at underground Fordow facility.
- Strict inspection by IAEA.
- UN arms embargo will remain in place for 5 years.
- Embargo on missiles will be there for 8 years.

IAEA Headquarters
Vienna, Austria

ENRICHED URANIUM

What do you understand?

LIVE

Natural uranium
>99.2% U-238
0.72% U-235

Low-enriched uranium
(reactor grade)
3-5% U-235

Highly enriched uranium
(weapons grade)
90% U-235

WHAT ARE ITS RAMIFICATIONS ON IRAN AND USA?

- 1 The decision of Mr. Trump has caused severe damage to the agreement and to American Diplomacy in general.
- 2 The reset of America and Iran relations, which was possible because of Obama's approach is now in doubt.
- 3 More and more sanctions are likely to be imposed on Iran.
- 4 The present decision is driven by political calculations than realistic assessment.
- 5 It will have credibility issues in future decisions of Mr. Trump and one important issue is the decision of Trump on North Korea.
- 6 It is boon to the hardliners in Iran who have suffered a political setback in recent years.

WHAT ARE ITS RAMIFICATIONS ON IRAN AND USA?

7 The moderate President Mr. Rouhani, who promised a solution to the nuclear crisis and won the re-election this year will find it difficult to mobilize public opinion behind the agreement in the light of continued U.S. hostility.

8 Iran is shining example of the capacity of world powers to come together and sort out complex issue diplomatically and the path shown by his predecessors is now being disrupted and moreover west Asia is in chaos.

The U.S. is damaging its own reputation.

WHAT ARE ITS RAMIFICATIONS ON INDIA?

EU may not give much credence to USA's decision and one has to wait and see because India and Iran relations are on downward trend in recent times.

- 1 Chabahar port is being constructed by India. What will happen, if US imposes more sanctions?
- 2 India enjoyed reasonably good relations with Iran, even during the periods of sanctions. How does the future relations transform?
- 3 How does it effect the relations with GCC countries?
- 4 Can India maintain delectate balance in complex west Asia region?

WE EXPRESS OUR SINCERE THANKS
FOR VIEWING THIS VIDEO

Presented by

Learning Space

For Suggestions:

suggestions@learningspace.in

To Contact us:

info@learningspace.in

OUR TEAM

G. V. Rao

Amrita Naidu

D. Sunil Kumar

L. V. Krishna

D. Chaitanya

K. Srikanth

G. Ravi Babu

D. Joji

K. Victor Babu

Visit us at:

www.learningspacedigital.com

0 8 6 6 -2 4 4 4 4 7 2

0 9 8 4 9 9 4 2 2 9 9