268 DERIVATIVE PRODUCTSDERIVATIVES

- Derivatives are products, instruments, or securities which are derived from another security, cash market, index, or another derivative.
- A derivative instrument (or simply derivative) is, thus, a financial instrument which derives its value from the value of some other financial instrument or variable. Ex. stock option is a derivative because it derives its value from the value of a stock.

KSMs / APIs / BULK DRUGS

BUILDING BLOCKS OF MEDICINES

➤ Key starting materials (KSMs), which are the building blocks of active pharmaceutical ingredients (APIs) or medicine raw materials, have become costlier recently

➤ KSMs needed for steroids and antibiotics have seen an increase in prices, while, prices of imported APIs have come down to pre-Covid levels

All major antibiotics are made from two KSMs:

1 Penicillin G is used to manufacture most of Cephalosporins

Its prices have recently risen by about 15% from $9.5 to $11

2 Erythromycin Thiocyanate (TIOC) is used in the production of Macrolides

TIOC prices have jumped from RMB 300 to RMB 400 in six months
