FAMOUS CULTURAL INSTITUTIONS (PART- II)

MODULE – 2

CENTRE FOR CULTURAL RESOURCES AND TRAINING

- 1 The Ministry of Culture, Government of India, has instituted the Centre for Cultural Resources and Training (CCRT) for linking education with culture.
- 2 It was established in 1979 at the behest of Dr. Kapila Vatsyayan and Smt. Kamala Devi Chattopadhyay.
- 3 Although an autonomous body, CCRT has been mandated by the government to strengthen the foundation of the nation by making education, culture based and meaningful.
- 4 CCRT has its headquarters in New Delhi and three Regional Centres at Udaipur in the west, Hyderabad in the south and Guwahati in the north-east, to facilitate the widespread dissemination of Indian art and culture

CENTRE FOR CULTURAL RESOURCES AND TRAINING

5 CCRT has a holistic approach towards education and they focus on the emotional, spiritual and cognitive development of children.

6 They want to do this through reframing education and making it more meaningful.

7 CCRT not only focuses on the students but creates an awareness amongst teachers, principals and non-teaching/ administrative actors about the multiplicity of regional cultures and languages in India.

8 This plurality has to be incorporated amongst the syllabus and enforced through new and innovative teaching methods.

CENTRE FOR CULTURAL RESOURCES AND TRAINING

9 Some of these new methodologies suggested are:

To organise workshops to equip teachers with practical training and knowledge in crafts that can be taught as part of the school curriculum. These activities can range from classical dance to music and even varied art forms that showcase the diversity of Indian culture.

To create a curriculum on Indian art and culture for teachers who would consequently teach them to the students.

To create a library to house the scripts, digital photographs, audio and visual recordings, which would be culturally oriented educational aids and would focus on the arts and crafts of rural India and means to revive and keep them alive.

CENTRE FOR CULTURAL RESOURCES AND TRAINING

10 The Government of India provides funds to CCRT to offer scholarships to students, teachers and artists helping them in their endeavour in interlinking education with culture.

11 These scholarships are given to Young Artists, Junior and Senior Fellowships for deeper researches.

12 They also organise the Cultural Heritage Young Leadership Programme that aims at promoting social values and community participation amongst the pro-active young people of India.

NATIONAL ARCHIVES OF INDIA

1 The National Archives of India (NAI) is a repository of the non-current records of the Government of India and holds them in trust for the use of administrators and scholars.

2 Originally established as the Imperial Record Department in 1891, in Calcutta, the capital of British India, presently the headquarters of NAI is situated at the intersection of Janpath and Rajpath, in Delhi.

3 It functions as an Attached Office of the Department of Culture under the Ministry of Culture, Government of India.

4 The idea of its establishment is attributed to the British Civil Auditor, Sandeman, who wanted a 'Grand Central Archive' to protect all the valuable records in 1860.

NATIONAL ARCHIVES OF INDIA

- 5 The archive or the 'Imperial Records Department' (IRD) was first established in 1891 in the old British capital-Calcutta under the auspices of Prof. G.W. Forrest.

- 6 The IRD was shifted to New Delhi in 1911 as the British changed the national capital from Calcutta to Delhi.

- 7 After India gained its independence, the IRD was renamed as the National Archives of India (NAI).

- 8 Soon after this rechristening, there was a change in the administrative set-up and a Director of the Archives headed the NAI.

- 9 Furthermore, a Conservation Research Laboratory (CRL) was added to the archives in 1940 for the express purpose of conserving and preserving these important documents about Indian history.

NATIONAL ARCHIVES OF INDIA

10 Slowly, the ambit of responsibility of the Archives was increased to include acquisition of the public records and private papers/collections that were added to the library.

11 They also started research and reference programmes and formalised training for conservation.

12 They also opened regional office in Bhopal and record centres at Jaipur, Bhubaneswar and Puducherry.

NATIONAL ARCHIVES OF INDIA

The Vision and Mission of NAI are as given below :

VISION

To help in spreading a feeling of national pride in our documentary cultural heritage and ensuring its preservation for posterity.

MISSION

- To encourage the scientific management, administration and conservation of records all over the country.
- To foster close relations between archivists' and archival institutions, both at the national and international levels.
- To encourage greater liberalization of access to archival holdings.
- To help in developing greater professionalism and a scientific temper among creators, custodians and users of records for proper care and use of our documentary heritage.

- Participation in International Film Festivals abroad.

DIRECTORATE OF FILM FESTIVALS

Directorate of Film Festivals

4 As their main motto is to promote cultural exchange between nations and cultures through the medium of film, they are given the responsibility of organizing the Cultural Exchange programmes.

5 They do this through the screenings of Indian films through the missions abroad.

6 As they have such a large archive of films, the government has directed them to create a Print Collection and Documentation Centre for the use of those who want to study film art.

DIRECTORATE OF FILM FESTIVALS

Many of the Indian movies are screened abroad by DFF

- 7 The major usage of the DFF is to open international dialogue between the nations.
- 8 It opens several commercial opportunities for the Indian filmmakers.
- 9 They also allow all the latest global cinematic trends to percolate to the Indian audience, film industry and students of cinema.
