MODULE - 14

DIFFERENCES BETWEEN INSURGENCY, MILITANCY AND TERRORISM

It is a challenge to the law and order machinery of the state. The state has to respond by carefully calibrated use of force to quell the insurgency.

INSURGENCY

- 1 It is an act of revolt by armed means to overthrow the established government.
- 2 These disturbances are aimed at pressurizing the govt to concede to their demands.
- 3 Insurgency is confined within the national boundary and it is directed against one's own government.
- 4 Insurgency is generally operated with the support of a section of the local people.

MILITANCY

- 1 Militancy is against the security forces of the govt, civil police and Army of the govt.
- 2 Militancy is the state or condition of being combative or disposed to fight by championing a cause or belief.
- 3 It is use of violent methods in support of a cause.
- 4 Generally supported by outsiders.

TERRORISM

- 1 Looking carefully it has elements of both militancy and insurgency rolled in it.
- 2 It is aimed to coerce the govt, intimidate the civilian population by inflicting casualties by weapons and explosives and challenge the security forces in the area.
- 3 Allowing insurgency to simmer unaddressed for a long time turns into terrorism when a foreign power begins to sense it's opportunities. It begins to actively, but covertly support the cadres and organize the movement as a terrorist force.

NORTH-EAST INSURGENCY

TRIPURA

- 1 Insurgency in Tripura finds its root in the influx of refugees from the newly emerged East Pakistan after partition, post independence and post 1971 war liberation in Bangladesh.
- 2 Migration fuelled discontent and demographic inversion in Tripura.
- 3 The National Liberation Front of Tripura (NLFT) was formed on March 2, 1989 and its armed wing, the National Holy Army and All Tripura Tiger Force (ATTF), in July 1990, queering the pitch.
- 4 The outfits came up with a secessionist agenda, disputed the merger of the kingdom of Tripura with the Indian Union, and demanding sovereignty for Tripura, deportation of “illegal migrants”, and the restoration of land to the tribal people under the Tripura Land Reform Act, 1960.
- 5 Between 1990 and 1995, the insurgency remained low-key. But it grew in extent and magnitude between 1996 and 2004 — and then started melting.

TRIPURA

HOW TRIPURA SUCCEEDED IN CONTROLLING INSURGENCY: TRIPURA MODEL

The State took on the problems in a strategic and resolute manner under the sagacious and visionary leadership of Chief Minister Manik Sarkar

1. Counter-insurgency operations intent on swift area-domination and ascendancy
2. Psychological operations and confidence-building measures
3. Accelerated development thrust
4. Management of the media
5. Civic action programmes of the security forces
6. Political processes

1

Counter Insurgency Operations (C.I.Ops):

- This forms the core of interventions in the nature of productive conflict-resolution aimed at defusing insurgency.
- Here, Army was not taken on board and special police officers were inducted into operations.
- Their conduct was under close observation at the highest level in order to check personnel from going berserk and being ruthless, trigger-happy, oppressive and violative of human rights.

2

Psychological operations and CBMs:

- Focused on correcting the tribal person's negative perception about the state and the mainland;
- Brainstorming sessions centered on unwinding the deeds, misdeeds and subversive designs of insurgency and to unmask its hypocritical conduct;
- Provision of jobs to tribals in particular, and to the family members of victims;
- Attractive rehabilitation packages comprising monetary benefits, and vocational training to induce insurgents to return to the mainstream;

3

Accelerated development thrust:

- As the security forces achieved success in area-domination, no time was lost in implementing governance and developmental interventions swiftly and vigorously.
- Delivery of basic services such as health care, rural connectivity, drinking water supply, employment generation and income accretion.
- Outcomes were active community participation in the development process and in the fight against insurgency.

4

Civic action programmes of the security forces:

- Security forces, both Central and State, spread all over the insurgency-bound pockets as the only visible face of the State, came up with civic action programmes.
- They provided healthcare, drinking water supply, study and sports material to students, repair of dilapidated school buildings, construction of community centres, vocational training in computer learning, tailoring, embroidery and so on.

5

Political processes:

- Political process initiated by Chief Minister Sarkar went a long way in dissolving the malaise of insurgency.
- Peace marches were organised in far-flung insurgency pockets to instil confidence in the people.
- Micro-democratic institutions such as autonomous development councils, gram panchayats and village councils were strengthened, revitalized and legitimized.

Tripura scripted a story of triumph over insurgency and conflict-resolution, and demonstrated that insurgency was not an insurmountable phenomenon.

STATE WISE STATUS OF INSURGENCY

MIZORAM

What contributed to the success of conflict resolution of Mizoram?

- Positive gestures of Rajiv Gandhi which was appreciated by the leaders of Mizoram.
- Maturity exhibited by two Mizo political personalities of the time – undisputed insurgent leader Pu Laldenga and the then Chief Minister Pu Lal Thanhawala's unilateral offer of stepping down in favour of Laldenga as the Chief Minister.
- Moderating influence and pressure from the Mizo civil society.

1

Among the ethnic and secessionist conflicts, the resolution of the Mizoram issue was a notable success.

2

The movement by the Mizo National Front had racial and religious overtones, and its declared aim was secession of Mizoram from the Indian Union.

3

The Mizoram Accord of June 1986 succeeded in bringing the violent conflict of the past decades to a satisfactory conclusion.

MIZORAM – HMAR INSURGENCY

1 Following the spike in the Mizo insurgency in 1970s, Mizo accord was signed in 1986 between the Union Government and the Mizo National Front.

2 According to this Accord, insurgent group agreed to surrender before the Union and re-enter the constitutional political stream. A year later, statehood was conferred.

3 Not satisfied with the Mizo Accord, some Hmar leaders formed the Hmar People's Convention (HPC), and began a struggle for autonomy.

4 The insurgency raged until 1994, when the Mizoram government set up the Sinlung Hills Development Council for Hmar-inhabited areas.

MIZORAM – HMAR INSURGENCY

WHO ARE HMARS?

- They are tribal people living in Assam, Mizoram and Manipur, mainly in the area where these states meet.
- Although the Hmar identity is strong, Mizos in general consider them as part of the community, or at least as one of tribes that make up the Zohnahthlak, a loose grouping of tribes with largely similar customs, dialects and dress who live in Mizoram or its immediate vicinity.
- Many Hmars are members of Mizoram's middle class; most no longer speak the Hmar dialect, and are fully integrated into Mizo society.
- In Manipur, the tribe is sometimes loosely included in the Kuki group.

Demands of the Hmar Insurgents:

The stated demand is a separate tribal autonomous district, and sometimes a state called Hmar Ram, for the Hmar tribe.

SUCCESS OF MIZORAM

- 1 The agreement between the leaders raised the prospect of the return of peace to the state of Mizoram.
- 2 Peace brought its own dividend in the form of water pipelines, roads and, above all, schools.
- 3 By 1999, Mizoram had overtaken Kerala as India's most literate state.
- 4 Mizos are learning Hindi, and watching and playing the popular game, cricket.

- 5 They also speak fluent English (the state's own official language); young Mizos, men as well as women, have found profitable employment in the growing service sector, in hotels and airlines in particular.

6

In 1997, following ethnic tension over an incident in Mizoram, around 30,000 Bru tribals were forced to flee the states and seek shelter in Tripura.

5

More political authority for Brus and a Bru Autonomous District Council under 6th schedule was demanded.

4

Brus retaliated through an armed struggle.

1

Four party agreement recently signed between Centre, Mizoram, Tripura and leaders of Bru Community.

2

At present over 30,000 Brus are living in refugee camps in Tripura.

3

First sign of conflict was seen in 1995 when certain Mizo organisations demanded that Brus be left out of Mizos electoral rolls as they were not an indigenous tribes.

CHALLENGES IMPLEMENTATION OF THE PRESENT PACT

- Whether it will be acceptable by the domicile tribes is a big question.
- Tripura was eager to repatriate them to Mizoram. Here, it needs lot of political will to implement the welfare schemes suggested in the pact.
- Existing Brus in Mizoram are still being targeted. The present pact will encourage huge exodus if there is no peace in Mizoram.

MEGHALAYA

This is perhaps the least affected state by insurgency in the north east

CORRUPTION

ISSUES:

- Identity issues between tribals and non-tribal settlers
- Growing corruption
- Sharp change in demography owing to Bangladeshi infiltrators.
- Issues of kidnapping, extortion, ransom collection from the wealthy members, particularly coal barons.
- Trafficking of drugs like ganja, cocaine, opium
- Smuggling of weapons, black marketeering etc.

NORTH-EAST INSURGENCY

STATE WISE STATUS OF INSURGENCY

ASSAM

- 1 Radical turn in Assamese nationalism can be traced back to the influx of illegal migrants from East Pakistan after Partition in 1947 and later since 1971 onwards after the formation of Bangladesh.
- 2 Massive migrant flow created immense anxiety amongst the Assamese middle classes and the rural masses.
- 3 Assamese thought that India is exploiting Assam's oil.

- 4 Revenues from Assam's other famous product—tea—were also going to the head offices located in West Bengal.

NORTH-EAST INSURGENCY

STATE WISE STATUS OF INSURGENCY

ASSAM

- 5 Most proximate cause of the Assam Agitation (1979-1985) was however malpractices in the electoral procedure in 1978.
- 6 All Assam Students' Union (AASU) led an agitation demanding the 1951 National Register for Citizens be utilized to determine the citizenship of all those living in Assam.
- 7 State tried to use force and suppress the agitation.
- 8 Creation of one of the most persistent of violent ethnic movements in Assam—the United Liberation front of Asom (ULFA).
- 9 ULFA wants Assam's status to the Ahom ruled Assam, pre-1826 treaty of Yandaboo between the British and the Burmese, which brought in British rule in Assam.
- 10 3 September 2011 peace talk led to the Tripartite agreement for Suspension of Operations (SoO) against ULFA.

11 In July 2012, violence broke out with riots between indigenous Bodos and Bengali-speaking Muslims (who were suspected to be illegal Bangladeshi Muslims).

12 Violence in Assam later had its repercussions in other parts of India- Azad maidan riots in Mumbai, Rumour mongering (via sinister SMSs) triggered exodus of NE Indians.

Statehood demands in Assam:

1. Bodoland
2. KarbiAnglong
3. Dimaraji
4. Kamtapur

NORTH-EAST INSURGENCY

ASSAM – CREATION OF KARBI ANGLONG

- This is the largest among the 27 districts of Assam.
- Karbis are the most prominent indigenous people in this district
- Karbi longri N.C. Hills Liberation Front (KLNLF) is demanding a separate statehood comprising of two hill districts – Karbi Anglong and Dima Hasao.

Government has created Karbi Anglong Autonomous Council in response to their demands.

NORTH-EAST INSURGENCY

ASSAM – CREATION OF DIMALAND

Dimasa people are demanding a separate state called Dimaland which comprises of parts of Dima Hasao district, parts of Cachar district, parts of Nagaon district, parts of KarbiAnglong district in Assam together with part of Dimapur district in Nagaland.

Government has created DimaHasao Autonomous Council in response to their demands.

NORTH-EAST INSURGENCY

ASSAM – CREATION OF KAMTAPUR

KAMTAPUR

- 1 The proposed Kamtapur state is to comprise of six districts in West Bengal and four contiguous districts of Assam.
- 2 Areas demanded under Kamtapur also overlap the areas which were demanded under the statehood of Gorkhaland.
- 3 Kamtapur do not have an autonomous council and the demand for the state has been raised by KochRajbanshis (Rajbongshis) people.
