Political

Socio-Economic

Governance

Centre-State Coordination

KEY ELEMENTS OF INTERNAL SECURITY DOCTRINE

1

POLITICAL:

- Challenges could be separatist or even regional in nature.
- We have to analyse the causative factors of various types of movements and see whether the demands are within the constitutional framework or not.

2

SOCIO-ECONOMIC:

- Many a times, there are genuine socio-economic grievances of a section of the society arising from acute poverty, unemployment and displacement.
- Equitable growth and development is the spirit of our constitution.

3

GOVERNANCE:

- Mismanagement and corruption in government schemes
- Poor implementation of laws.
- Absence of government machinery
- Delay of justice delivery.

4

POLICE AND SECURITY FORCES:

- Allegations of police atrocities, indifference towards people's problems aggravate internal security issues.
- E.g.: Demand for removal of AFSPA

KEY ELEMENTS OF INTERNAL SECURITY DOCTRINE

5 CENTRE-STATE COORDINATION:

- Lack of centre-state coordination exist in all areas from intelligence to operations.
- We need to develop an institutional framework to ensure synergy at all levels.

6 INTELLIGENCE:

- We need to have defensive as well as offensive intelligence to forewarn, neutralise the impending threats and take proactive steps whenever required.

7 BORDER MANAGEMENT:

- Illegal migration through Bangladesh
- Smuggling of weapons through Myanmar.

8 CYBER SECURITY:

- Snowden revelations of 2013 have made it clear that any solid doctrine on internal security must cover cyber space as well.

EXTERNAL SECURITY OF INDIA – MAJOR ISSUES

1 CHALLENGES FROM NEIGHBORHOOD:

- The Achilles heel of India's Foreign policy has always been the country's troubled relationship with the neighbours.
- Provocative aggressive expansion of China and adversarial relationship with Pakistan to non-adversarial but complicated ties with Sri Lanka or to the nuanced relationships with Bangladesh, Myanmar or Nepal and the delicate equation with Bhutan.

2 MIDDLE-EAST:

- Non-Aligned Movement
- Arab Spring
- Declining American Influence in the region
- ISIS, religious extremism and sectarian tensions
- Israeli – Palestinian conflict
- Presence of oil

EXTERNAL SECURITY OF INDIA – MAJOR ISSUES

3

MARITIME SECURITY CHALLENGES:

- With 11 maritime states and island territories, India probably has more seafaring people than the population of most European countries.
- India's maritime security challenges cover the entire range from low intensity conflict and piracy, all the way to major power strategic contests.
- Growing risks from non-state actors, including piracy, terrorism, and trafficking; the impacts of environmental degradation, resource depletion, climate change, and natural disasters; and weak states and failing institutions.

4

MILITARISATION OF SPACE:

- India's space program has very strong civil roots. More recently India has made a dramatic shift by adopting a more militarised attitude.
- E.g.: The launch of Shakti Missile in March 2019.

5

INTENSIFICATION OF COMPETITION FOR SCARCE RESOURCES:

- Former UN Secretary General Kofi Annan claimed that shortage of natural resources can contribute to unrest and civil violence.
- As the global population continues to rise and demand for resources continues to grow, there is significant potential for conflict over natural resources to intensify in the coming decades.

TERRORISM – ROLE OF EXTERNAL STATE AND NON-STATE ACTORS

DEFINITION OF TERRORISM:

Terrorism is a state of terror, panic and a fear psychosis, created by an individual or a group of people in order to force, coerce or blackmail the authorities, using violent methods to accept their demand or to attain political, religious or ideological goals.

1

There is an obvious lack of political will to any universally acceptable definition of terrorism.

2

Even the United Nations has been unable to come up with an official definition of the terrorism that is universal and acceptable to all member countries.

3

The difficulty in defining what exactly constitutes terrorism acts as a barrier in international cooperation against terrorism.

TERRORISM – ROLE OF EXTERNAL STATE AND NON-STATE ACTORS

CLASSIFICATION OF TERRORISM

TERRORISM

TERRORISM BY EXTERNAL STATE ACTORS

- When any government directly or indirectly indulges in terrorism against its own people or the people of another country, it is referred to as terrorism by state actors.
- Also, terrorism against another country, whether in support of international terrorism or in order to destabilize that country, can be classified as external state sponsored terrorism.
- E.g.: Terrorism in Kashmir is a direct manifestation of state policy of Pakistan and ISI influence

TERRORISM BY NON-STATE ACTORS

- In this case, the act of terrorism is performed by an individual or a group which is not associated with or financed by any Government.
- Non-state actors have generally no direct or indirect link with any government or government agency while pursuing their agenda, though indirect linkages cannot be completely ruled out.
- E.g.: Naxalites, LTTE and North East extremists.

TERRORISM – ROLE OF EXTERNAL STATE AND NON-STATE ACTORS

CATERGORISATION OF TERRORISM IN INDIA

MODUS OPERANDI AND MOTTO OF ISI (through so called Non-State Actors) is

- To bleed India with a thousand cuts.
- To destabilise Indian economy through fake currency and other means.
- To supply arms and explosives to all kinds of militants in India.
- To take advantage of anti-government groups operating within India and to provide financial, logistic and military support to such groups.
- To spread and support Islamic fundamental activities.
- To spread communal hatred and communal violence in India with the aim to divide and weaken the country.

TERRORISM – ROLE OF EXTERNAL STATE AND NON-STATE ACTORS

GROWTH OF HINTERLAND TERRORISM

Hinterland terrorism is the terrorism that is spread all across the hinterland of the country. If we look back and analyse, there appears to be a sequential, well planned, well motivated growth of terrorism in India.

- 1 After failing in two conventional wars against India, Pakistan adopted the path of sub-conventional war/proxy war by supporting terrorist activities in India since the last three decades with the motto of “bleeding India with a thousand cuts”
- 2 The seeds of present terrorism were sown in the Khalistan movement in Punjab in the 1980s.
- 3 After Punjab, Pakistan targeted Kashmir in the 90s and tried to take advantage of anti-India separatist sentiments.
 - E.g.: LeT, JeM, Hizbul Mujahideen etc.

TERRORISM – ROLE OF EXTERNAL STATE AND NON-STATE ACTORS

GROWTH OF HINTERLAND TERRORISM

4 Meanwhile, SIMI was formed in Aligarh in 1977 with its motive to liberate Indian Muslims from western influence and make them follow Islamic code of conduct. In the 80s and 90s, SIMI became a highly militant and extremist group.

5 The Ayodhya incidents of 1992 also saw the rise of reactionary terrorist activities all over India, especially in Mumbai (1993 Bombay serial blasts)

6 The 21st century saw the formation of Indian Mujahideen (IM) after the ban on SIMI. Doctored videos of Gujarat riots were used by ISI to mobilise, recruit and radicalise the youth.

8 The ISI has always tried to take advantage of communal incidents like the Ayodhya issue and Gujarat riots for inciting young Indian Muslims.

9 The increasing efforts of ISI to exploit communal sentiments have ensured that the Muslim community remains vulnerable to mobilisation, recruitment and radicalisation

10 We saw reactionary right wing extremist activities in 2006-07 in the form of bomb blasts in Malegaon, Mecca Masjid, Hyderabad, Ajmer Dargah and Samjhauta Express.
