

MUST FOR EVERY STUDENT ... FOR ALL COMPETITIVE EXAMS

ENGLISH MADE SIMPLE!

LEARN WITH GVR SIR

MODULE - 12

Illustrious : Notably or brilliantly outstanding because of achievements or actions.

114

Example :
Ramesh started off as a clerk and soon had an illustrious career as an officer.

Illustrious : Notably or brilliantly outstanding because of achievements or actions.

114

Example :
Satya Nadella hails from an illustrious family.

Illustration : A picture in a book to illustrate something

115

Example :
Raju is extremely good at illustrations.

115

The terminology of economy can be explained with simple illustrations.

Quagmire : A soft boggy area of land that gives way underfoot

116

Example :
Torrential rains turned the construction site into a quagmire.

Quagmire : an awkward, complex, or hazardous situation.

116

Example :
Since the eruption of Libyan civil war, the country has sunk deeper into a quagmire of lawlessness and violence.

Quagmire : A situation that can easily trap you so that you become involved with problems from which it is difficult to escape.

116

Example :
Subsequent to the reply to the Income Tax Department Notice, Raju's troubles started with bureaucratic quagmire.

Bona fide : Real, not fake, not false

117

Example :
When one is dealing with a company for making investments, bona fides of the company must be verified.

Bona fide : Legal/honest

117

A photograph of a modern, multi-story glass skyscraper at dusk. The building's facade is composed of numerous rectangular glass panels, many of which are framed in vibrant colors like red, green, and blue. The interior lights are on, making the building glow. In the background, other city buildings and streetlights are visible under a dark blue sky.

Example :
The commercial transactions of XXX company are bona fide.

Mala fide : Illegal or dishonest

118

Example :
XXX, while working as a superintending engineer made excess payments, but it was revealed that there is no mala fide intention.

Murky : Dark and dirty/difficult to see through.

119

Example :
Mithi river in Mumbai City is murky.

Murky : Used to describe a situation that is complicated and unpleasant, and many details/facts are not clear.

119

Example :
Dons of the Mumbai underworld became rich with murky deals of International drug peddling.

Rectitude : Honesty and correct moral behavior

120

Example :

It is very difficult to find politicians in the present era with unquestioned moral rectitude.

Turpitude : Depraved behaviour

121

Example :
Moral turpitude is the major reason for criminal behavior of certain individuals.

Turpitude : A criminal offence that involves moral turpitude is considered wrong or evil by moral standards in addition to being the violation of the statute.

121

Example :
The image of the political class has gone down badly with crimes of moral turpitude.

Embezzle : Secretly misappropriate something fraudulently to one's own use/advantage

122

Example :

The mayor of the city is under trial for embezzling the funds allocated for the city's renovation project.

Embezzle : To steal money that is in your care or that belongs to an organization or business you work for.

122

Example :
xxx, working as Manager with State Bank of India, embezzled
Rs. 5,00,00,000.

PASSAGE - 4

THE TIMES OF INDIA

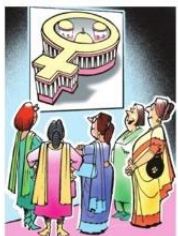

18-09-2023

33% Fairer

Political returns on passing the women's reservation bill look very good now. Don't waste this chance

The legislative agenda of the special Parliament session, beginning today, is still not known definitively. But one of the speculated agenda items is a bill to reserve one-third of all seats in the Lok Sabha and the state legislative assemblies for women. The country and its women have come a long way since the passage of such a legislation was first attempted in 1996. The vociferous opposition that every government attempting this has faced so far, has also muted. Brutish scenes of male MPs tearing up women's reservation bills in the past, are now unlikely to be repeated. The socio-economic argument for this reservation was strong even three decades ago. What the passage of time has done is shifted the politics to the same page.

BJP committed to a constitutional amendment towards this reservation in both its 2014 and 2019 manifestos. Individually many male politicians must still be offering resistance within the party.

But today's BJP can tame rebels. And the party has a chance to tell voters it has delivered the boldest reform for women since the Constitution delivered universal adult franchise. Of course, Congress will remind voters how it spearheaded the transformative one-third reservation for women in panchayati raj institutions. Plus, how Sonia Gandhi's staunch leadership ensured a women's reservation bill through the Rajya Sabha in 2010, in a much more hostile time. But almost certainly, the governing party will bag the bigger bragging rights.

As for reasons the politics on women's reservation has shifted so much since 2010, look at the 2019 Lok Sabha elections voting data: women's turnout beat men's for the first time – a trend also being seen in many assembly polls. Women are the focus of many more welfare schemes, their issues are much more centrestage. But their representation in legislatures still remains 0-14%. The same year the women's reservation bill passed RS the budget had spoken of double digit growth – another unmet goal. Policymakers should know there's a close and much-studied connection between high growth and women's empowerment, and the latter will get a major boost if the number of women more than double in our legislatures. Noting how much women have been empowered since 1947 or 1996 cannot hide how much discrimination still persists, or how much it is costing India in wealth and wellbeing.

33% FAIRER

Political returns on passing the women's reservation bill look very good now. Don't waste this chance

The legislative agenda of the special Parliament session, beginning today, is still not known definitively. But one of the speculated agenda items is a bill to reserve one-third of all seats in the Lok Sabha and the state legislative assemblies for women. The country and its women have come a long way since the passage of such a legislation was first attempted in 1996. The vociferous opposition that every government attempting this has faced so far, has also muted.

PASSAGE - 4

THE TIMES OF INDIA

18-09-2023

33% Fairer

Political returns on passing the women's reservation bill look very good now. Don't waste this chance

The legislative agenda of the special Parliament session, beginning today, is still not known definitively. But one of the speculated agenda items is a bill to reserve one-third of all seats in the Lok Sabha and the state legislative assemblies for women. The country and its women have come a long way since the passage of such a legislation was first attempted in 1996. The vociferous opposition that every government attempting this has faced so far, has also muted. Brutish scenes of male MPs tearing up women's reservation bills in the past, are now unlikely to be repeated. The socio-economic argument for this reservation was strong even three decades ago. What the passage of time has done is shifted the politics to the same page.

BJP committed to a constitutional amendment towards this reservation in both its 2014 and 2019 manifestos. Individually many male politicians must still be offering resistance within the party.

But today's BJP can tame rebels. And the party has a chance to tell voters it has delivered the boldest reform for women since the Constitution delivered universal adult franchise. Of course, Congress will remind voters how it spearheaded the transformative one-third reservation for women in panchayati raj institutions. Plus, how Sonia Gandhi's staunch leadership ensured a women's reservation bill through the Rajya Sabha in 2010, in a much more hostile time. But almost certainly, the governing party will bag the bigger bragging rights.

As for reasons the politics on women's reservation has shifted so much since 2010, look at the 2019 Lok Sabha elections voting data: women's turnout beat men's for the first time – a trend also being seen in many assembly polls. Women are the focus of many more welfare schemes, their issues are much more centrestage. But their representation in legislatures still remains 0-14%. The same year the women's reservation bill passed RS the budget had spoken of double digit growth – another unmet goal. Policymakers should know there's a close and much-studied connection between high growth and women's empowerment, and the latter will get a major boost if the number of women more than double in our legislatures. Noting how much women have been empowered since 1947 or 1996 cannot hide how much discrimination still persists, or how much it is costing India in wealth and wellbeing.

Brutish scenes of male MPs tearing up women's reservation bills in the past, are now unlikely to be repeated. The socio-economic argument for this reservation was strong even three decades ago. What the passage of time has done is shifted the politics to the same page. BJP committed to a constitutional amendment towards this reservation in both its 2014 and 2019 manifestos.

WE EXPRESS OUR SINCERE THANKS FOR VIEWING THIS VIDEO

Presented by

Learning Space

For Suggestions:

suggestions@learningspace.in

To Contact us:

info@learningspace.in

For Information:

info.learningspacedigital@gmail.com

Visit us at:

www.learningspacedigital.com

98499 42299