Check on FPIs

SEBI should not backtrack on FPI ownership norms

Indian equity markets have been witnessing a correction over the last two months led by foreign portfolio investors selling around ₹38,000 crore of Indian shares in this period. While the selling is partly due to hardening US treasury bond yields and geopolitical problems, some are also pointing to the new SEBI guidelines for FPIs, which will come into force from today, as the trigger for this sell-off.

The new rules restrict FPI holdings in assets of a single Indian corporate group to 50 per cent and overall investment of each FPI in Indian equity to ₹5,000 crore. FPIs with such large, concentrated exposures must disclose granular details of all entities either owning, having control or economic interest in them, to the regulator. While there are calls asking for dilution of these rules or relaxation of the deadline, SEBI should stay firm and face the rules, as long-overdue to streamline the foreign portfolio norms. It may be recalled that the guideline is a 5% limit on FPIs holding shares in a company, as per the Securities and Exchange Board of India (SEBI) guidelines which alleged that 12 foreign portfolio investors were part of the public shareholding of companies in the Adani group were indirectly owned by either Gitanjali Adani or his close family members. Given the large gaps in the disclosure requirements regarding ultimate beneficial owners of FPIs, and the relaxation provided to FPIs over the years, it was all right for the regulator to check the veracity of the allegations.

This is the opportunity, or the regulator's decision to review these rules will not only bring in FPIs, but will also provide ownership data of all groups within the concentrated holdings by foreign portfolio investors. This data, along with the right to take the floor through price discovery, will enable the ultimate beneficial owner to enable the regulator to plug down the promoter's lying under the radar in maintaining their stakes below the regulatory threshold. SEBI should not get flustered by FPI selling for such corrections are part of the course and the call of the regulator is to be a decision for the entire market. For over 14-16 years, we are already beginning to have the desired effect.

A story in this newspaper stated that FPI holdings in seven Adani group companies have dropped significantly from the September 2023 quarter. Karam and Opportunity Funds, JPM's investment fund and Green Fund, which are alleged to have links to Adani family members, have reduced their holdings in Adani group entities significantly. SEBI has issued a 2 per cent to the 11,000 FPIs may be impacted by these new norms. Other FPIs with similar concentrated exposures would also have reduced their holdings to avoid scrutiny. With most of the selling related to this transition, the regulator should ensure that the information received is used to prevent investors from accessing a credible for monitoring.

SEBI should not backtrack on FPI ownership norms

Indian equity markets have been witnessing a correction over the last two months led by foreign portfolio investors selling around ₹80,000 crore of Indian shares in this period. While the selling is partly due to hedging US treasury bond yields and geopolitical problems, some are also pointing to the new SEBI guidelines for FPIs, which will come into force from today, as the trigger for this sell-off.

The new rules related to FPIs holding stakes of a single Indian corporate group to 10 per cent and overall investment of each FPI in India to ₹15,000 crore. FPIs with such caps on concentrated exposures must disclose, quarterly details of all entities they own, having control or economic interest in them to the regulator. While there are voices asking for dilution of these rules on occasion of the deadline, SEBI should stay firm for these rules as one overhang is the foreign portfolio route. It may be recalled that this guideline is a fallout of the Hindenburg research report on the Adani group which alleged that 12 foreign portfolio investors who were part of the public shareholders of companies in the Adani group were indirectly owned by either Gautam Adani or his close family members. Given the large gaps in the disclosure requirements regarding ultimate beneficial owners of FPIs, it was difficult for the regulator to check the veracity of the allegations.

This is the right opportunity for the regulator to do a course correction. These rules will not only test the SEBI's investigation into the Hindenburg allegations, but will also provide ownership data of foreign groups with similar concentration holdings by foreign portfolio investors. This data, along with the right to use the 'look through' principle to determine the ultimate beneficial owners, will enable the regulator to plug down the loopholes by which the regulator is maintaining a clean conscience below the regulatory threshold. SEBI should not get flustered by FPIs selling for such corrections are for the cause and the call of law is called FPIs in disclosure for the equity market. Investors' disclosures are already beginning to have the desired effect.

A story in this newspaper noted that FPIs holding stakes in over 100 Adani group companies have dropped significantly in the September 2023 quarter. Large India Opportunities Fund, ARD, Investors of Fund of Funds Fund, which are alleged to have links to Adani family members, also reduced their holding in Adani group stocks significantly. SEBI has stated that 2 per cent of the ₹1,000 crore FPIs may be acquired by these new norms. Other FPIs with similar concentrated exposures would also have reduced their holding to avoid selling, with most of the selling related to this transition. Hence, the regulator should ensure that the information received is used to prevent another loss, succumbing a credible, for investor's pay.

While there are voices asking for dilution of these rules or extension of the deadline, SEBI should stay firm for these rules are long overdue to sanitise the foreign portfolio route. It may be recalled that this guideline is a fallout of the Hindenburg research report on the Adani group which alleged that 12 foreign portfolio investors who were part of the public shareholders of companies in the Adani group were indirectly owned by either Gautam Adani or his close family members. Given the large gaps in the disclosure requirements regarding ultimate beneficial owners of FPIs, and the relaxations provided to FPIs over the years, it was difficult for the regulator to check the veracity of the allegations.
