

GOVERNANCE

CITIZEN'S PARTICIPATION

MODULE - 12

5. NGOS AND YOUTH

1 The National Youth Policy, 2014 envisions a productive workforce which is to be achieved through

- i Education, skill training and entrepreneurship
- ii Sports as way of life and a healthy generation
- iii Increased participation in the governance
- iv Strong social values and a sense of community service

v Bringing social inclusiveness by creating equitable opportunity for all.

2 The vast human resources require infrastructure that would bring transformation in the socio-economic scenario and technological advances.

5. NGOS AND YOUTH

3 There is enough scope to maximize the contribution of the youth towards nation building through new and innovative ideas and strong motivation.

4 Every nation needs energetic youth who are capable to take on new challenges with high motivation and active participation in all programmes.

5 Youth are considered to be the important manpower to build the nation.

6 Proper training and orientation towards nation building should be given to them so that their skills are effectively utilized.

5. NGOS AND YOUTH

7 Important role that can be played by the youth are that, they can be made part of the NGOs and voluntary organizations, they will help them to work in the field level and connect directly with the people.

8 Some of the areas that can be covered are as follows:

i Involvement in various governmental programmes of the youth through the NGOs.

ii Need to take-up and face the challenges.

iii Training and orientation to be received in all fields including the present developing technology.

iv Volunteering in nation building activities.

v Participation in various developmental activities through the Panchayati raj institutions and urban development programmes and plans.

6. NGOS AND ENVIRONMENT

1 All environmental issues are important for the survival of mankind.

2 The NGOs have played important role in both development and conservation activities.

3 At the micro or community level the NGOs provide assistance in identifying the need and requirements of the people, they also help in identifying the issues, raise awareness and help to articulate the problems suffered by these communities.

4 At macro or national level, the NGOs mainly focus on the policy work.

6. NGOS AND ENVIRONMENT

5 They play a significant role in identifying the lacunae and weaknesses in the current policy framework, and help in effective information gathering and educating the general public, the government officials, those related to the private industries.

6 They also help to organize protests and movements against certain policy decisions so that effective changes are made and people's voice are heard by those who formulate such policies.

6. NGOS AND ENVIRONMENT

ROLE PLAYED BY THE NGOS

- 1 The principle role of NGOs is to act like catalyst to bring changes in the local and national level and help in initiating community participation and achieve overall improvement in quality of life.
- 2 These organizations help the government to receive valuable information for promoting, facilitating and implementing programmes and policies relating to the environment conservation and protection.

6. NGOS AND ENVIRONMENT

- xiv The main mission is to engage people to promote sustainable use of the resources and effective protection of the environment.

7. THE NEED FOR CODE OF ETHICS FOR THE NGOS

1 Ever since the NGOs have assumed an important and indispensable role in the developmental process and governance, which they have achieved through appropriate identification of needs and effective implementation of development programmes, they have been subject to criticism

2 And these generally centres on the funds received and utilized by the NGOs

3 Major chunk of the NGOs relies on the financial assistance from the foreign donor agencies.

4 Mishandling and swindling of the money are the frequent complaints raised.

7. THE NEED FOR CODE OF ETHICS FOR THE NGOS

5 Some of these NGOs are alleged to have maintained links with foreign donors to finance programs, which are outside their main objectives. Some others are criticized for involving in destabilizing practices and thus, posing threat to the unity of the country.

6 And, many of the NGOs are alleged to serve particular interest of a community and thus, developing sectarian ideals and disrupting the very social fabric of the society.

7 The demand is, therefore, for a complete overhaul of the voluntary sector.

8 Some well-known NGOs and voluntary organizations have come together and initiated a dialogue on developing a set of norms to monitor the activities of the NGOs.

7. THE NEED FOR CODE OF ETHICS FOR THE NGOS

9 A national council in the name of Voluntary Council of India, was to be set-up through a bill in order to monitor and enforce a code of ethics for the NGOs.

10 A draft code of conduct was prepared whereby the voluntary organizations were required to hold general meetings regularly, audit their accounts and submit the same to the authorities, and those organizations receiving foreign funding have to get themselves registered with the Minister of Home Affairs under the Foreign Contribution (Regulation) Act, 1976.
