

MODULE - 5

FAMILY AND KINSHIP

FAMILY

TYPES OF FAMILIES

1 The structure of the family can be studied both as a social institution in itself and also in its relationship to other social institutions of society

2 Internal structure of the family is usually related to other structures of society, namely political, economic, cultural etc.

3 The composition of the family and its structure thereby changes and these changes can be understood in relation to other changes in society.

SINGLE PARENT
FAMILY

NUCLEAR FAMILY

JOINT/ EXTENDED
FAMILY

MALE HEADED
FAMILY

FAMILY AND KINSHIP

FAMILY

FOR EXAMPLE

- 1 Migration of men from the villages of the Himalayan region can lead to an unusual proportion of women-headed families in the village.
- 2 Work schedules of young parents in the software industry in India may lead to increasing number of grandparents moving in as care-givers to young grandchildren.

TYPES OF FAMILIES

WOMEN HEADED FAMILY

FAMILY AND KINSHIP

FAMILY

- Basis for family is kinship, while basis for household is residence.
- Based on common residence, families are divided into nuclear and joint families.

1 Nuclear family consists of only one set of parents and their children.

2 An extended family (commonly known as the 'joint family') can take different forms, but has more than one couple, and often more than two generations, living together.

DIVERSE FORMS OF THE FAMILY AND KINSHIP

- 1 With regard to the rule of residence, some societies are matrilocal in their marriage and family customs while others are patrilocal.
- 2 In the first case, the newly married couple stays with the woman's parents, whereas in the second case the couple lives with the man's parents
- 3 With regard to the rules of inheritance, matrilineal societies pass on property from mother to daughter while patrilineal societies do so from father to son.
- 4 A patriarchal family structure exists where the men exercise authority and dominance, and matriarchy (only theoretical) where the women play a similarly dominant role.

- Clear distinction between matrilineal and patrilineal kin
- Clear & specific terminology
- Sapinda rule exercised
- Village exogamy
- Four-gotra exogamy rule

- Totemic clan exogamy
- Rare cross cousin marriages
- Matrilineal relations also exist
- Bride price is also prevalent
- Dormitory system

- Mixed patterns of North and South
- Peculiar local rules in Gujarat
- Levirate also practiced
- Hypergamy also exists

- No strict village exogamy
- Preferential marriages
- No clear kinship terminology
- Clan exogamy
- Levirate is a taboo
- Matrilineal system also exists in Tharawad

REGIONAL KINSHIP VARIATION

KINSHIP

Kinship refers to a set of persons who are recognized as relatives, either by virtue of blood relationship (consanguinal kin) or by virtue of marriage relationship (affinal kin).

IRAWATI KARVE

JOINT FAMILY – A GREAT INSTITUTION

Based on the concept of 'Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam' (world is one family).

- 1 Typical symbol of the collectivist culture of India and lays the seeds for social cohesion and democratic thinking.
- 2 Plays critical role in preserving cultural values, traditions and customs, which have been passed on from generation to generation.
- 3 Creates strong bonding among siblings and other members of the family even while providing a sense of security to the children.
- 4 Children will imbibe the qualities of sharing, caring, empathy and understanding.

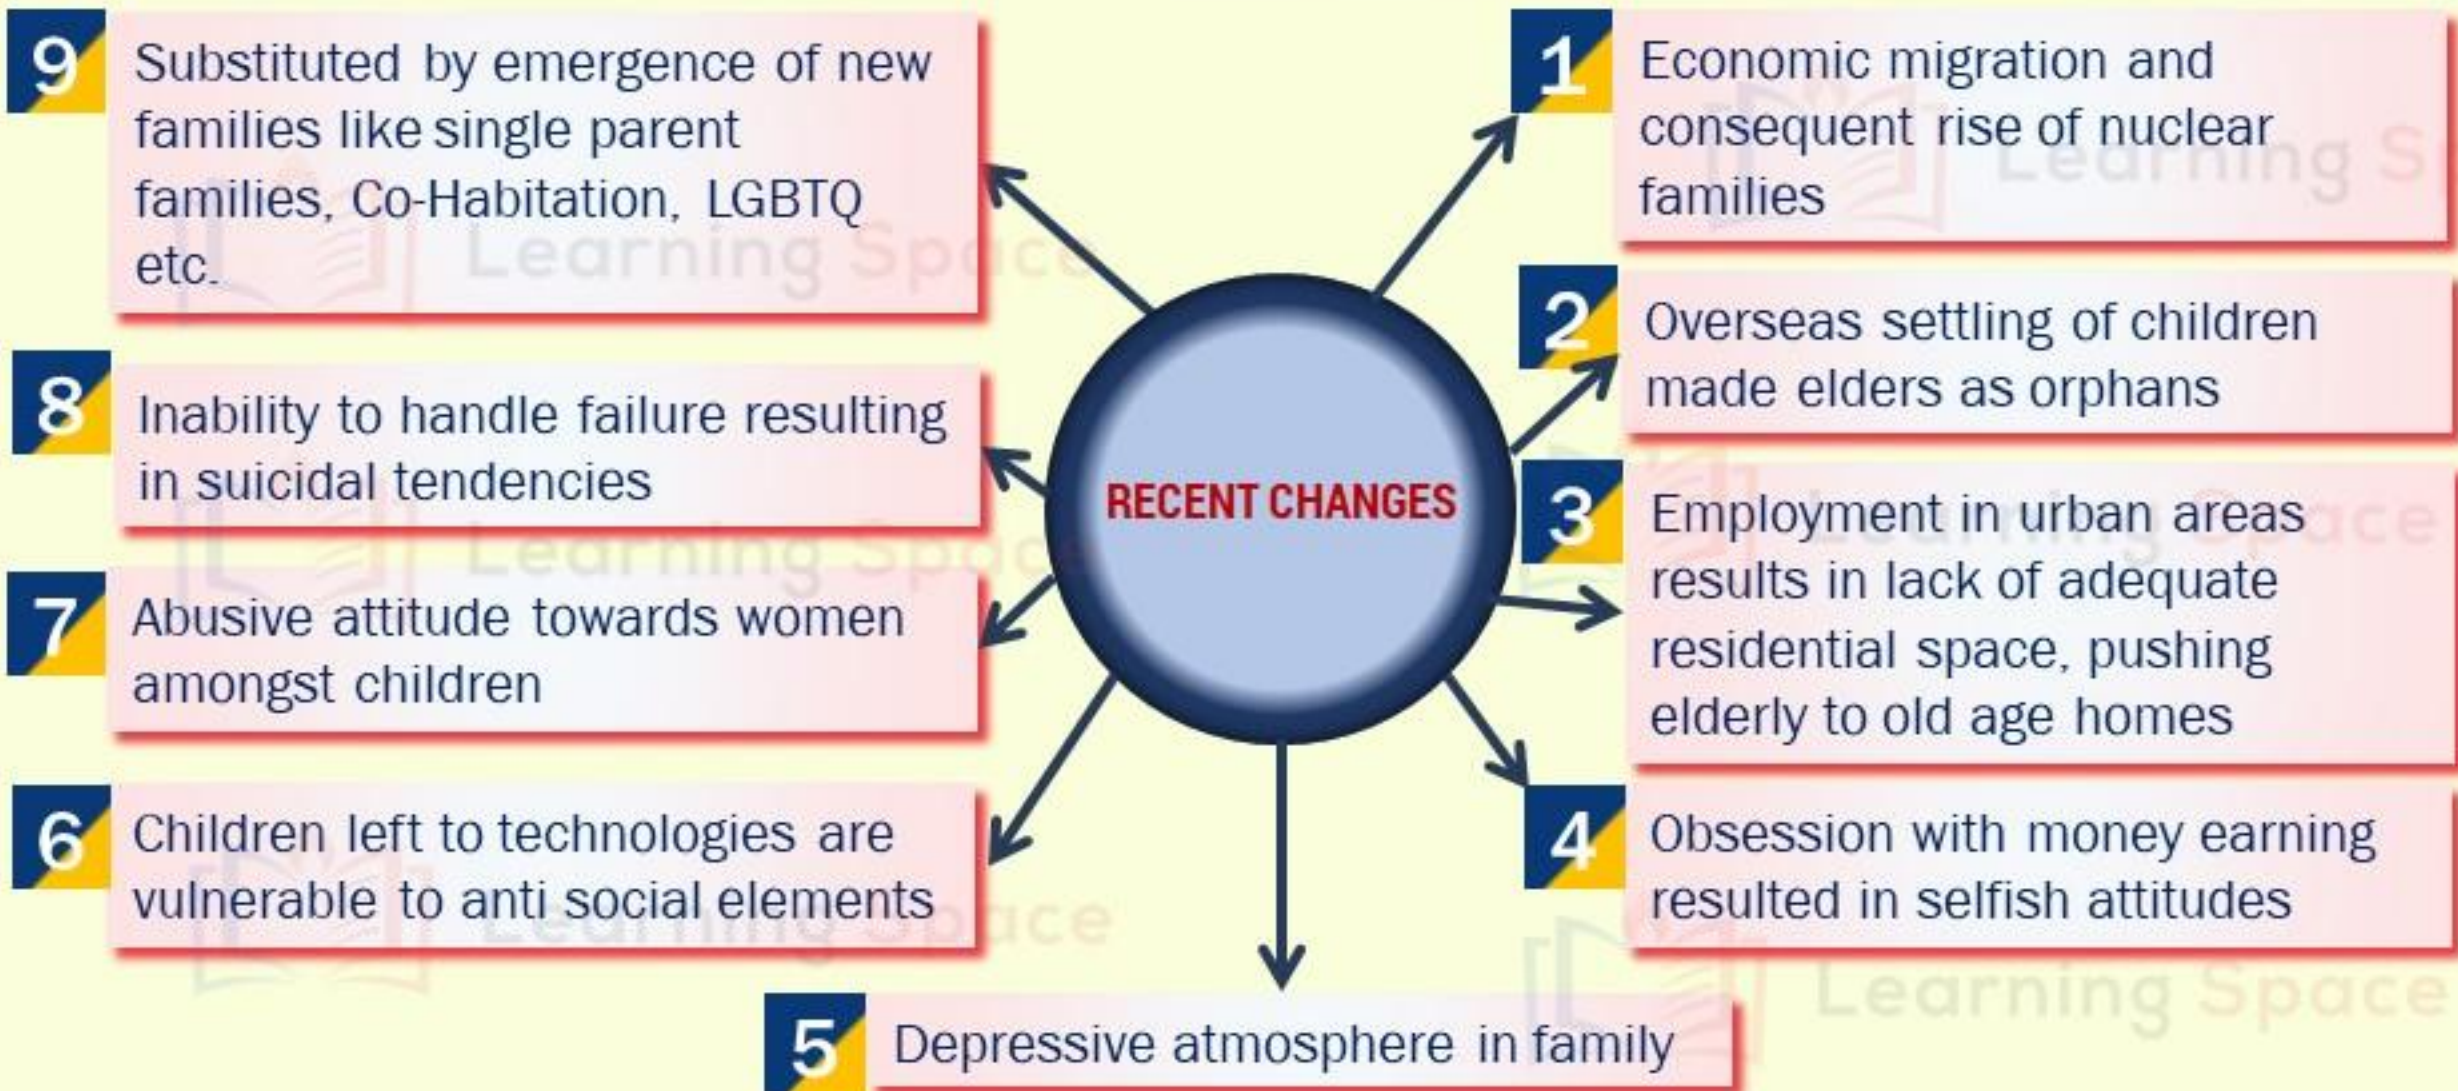

JOINT FAMILY – A GREAT INSTITUTION

- 5 Positive impact on the emotional quotient of children. They learn to handle failure while playing with siblings and cousins
- 6 Respect and care for elders.
- 7 Living with close family members rather than spending time in a crèche or play school will immensely contribute towards making the childhood memorable and happier, a crucial factor to the overall personality development of an individual.
- 8 Through the way for social cohesion it promotes national unity.
- 9 Children will imbibe qualities of tolerance, patience, attitude of accepting others' viewpoints.

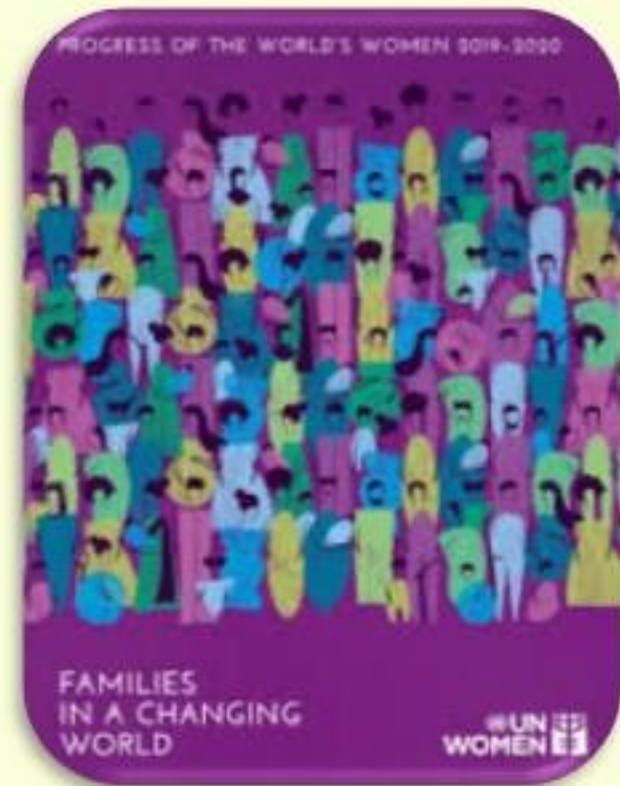

JOINT FAMILY – RECENT CHANGES

AS PER UN REPORT - PROGRESS OF THE WORLD'S WOMEN 2019-2020

- Lone mother households in India are around 13 million i.e., Single mothers head 4.5% of all Indian households.
- Dominant household form in India continues to be nuclear family followed by extended households.
- 46.7% of families are couples living with their children & over 31% live in extended families while single-person families account for 12.5%.
- The poverty rate of lone mother households are 38% in comparison to 22.6% for dual-parent household.

WE EXPRESS OUR SINCERE THANKS
FOR VIEWING THIS VIDEO

Presented by

Learning Space

For Suggestions:

suggestions@learningspace.in

To Contact us:

info@learningspace.in

For Information:

info.learningspacedigital@gmail.com

Visit us at:

www.learningspacedigital.com

0866 244 44 72

98499 42299

94415 27588