

POST INDEPENDENCE DEVELOPMENTS

KASHMIR + LANGUAGE ISSUE MODULE-4 (REVISED & NEW)

JAMMU & KASHMIR

- 1 The state of J&K was strategically important and was marked by cultural heterogeneity.
- 2 The state comprised of five main regions:
 - Province of Jammu — migrated by Hindus
 - Kashmir Valley — had Muslim majority (Sunnis)
 - Ladakh — bordering Tibet and comprising Buddhists
 - Gilgit and Baltistan — comprising Shia Muslims.

INDEPENDENCE OF KASHMIR

Symbol of National Conference

- 1 Hari Singh was the last ruling Maharaja of princely state of Jammu & Kashmir. When the British transferred power, the fate of the Princely states was left to themselves.
- 2 In June 1947, Lord Mountbatten advised J&K to accede to either dominion.
- 3 Pakistan naturally expected Kashmir, with its Muslim majority, to join it.
- 4 India thought that the religious factor was irrelevant, especially since the leading political party, the National Conference, was known to be non-sectarian.

STANDSTILL AGREEMENT

1 J&K offered to sign a Standstill Agreement in August with both countries, allowing free movement of goods and people across borders.

2 Pakistan signed the Agreement. India decided to wait and watch.

SHEIKH ABDULLAH OF NATIONAL CONFERENCE

- 1 The rule of the Maharaja of Kashmir had already been challenged in the Valley by Sheikh Abdullah and his party.
- 2 Sheikh Abdullah of the National Conference demanded a complete transfer of power to the people in Kashmir.
- 3 According to him, the representatives of the people in a democratic Kashmir should decide whether the State should join India or Pakistan. A popular government in Kashmir should be a joint government of the Hindus, the Sikhs and the Muslims.
- 4 He went to India to negotiate for Kashmir's autonomy. He wanted J&K to join the Indian Union on its terms
 1. State of J&K to retain its state flag
 2. The state was to have its own government

SHEIKH ABDULLAH OF NATIONAL CONFERENCE

- 5 Sheikh Abdullah wanted Kashmir to be independent on the ground that the Hindus of Kashmir were different from the Hindus of India and the Muslims of Kashmir were different from the Muslims of Pakistan.
- 6 But it was not possible for a landlocked country to safeguard its sovereignty from two big neighbours.
- 7 Thus, the Sheikh dropped the idea of becoming independent. It also rejected joining Pakistan as immoral.

1947 WAR

- 1 In September 1947, Nehru heard Pakistan sending infiltrators to Kashmir. Kashmir could not take care of itself and resist these infiltrators.
- 2 On 22 October, thousands of Pathans from Pakistan invaded J&K from north.
- 3 Indians believed that the tribals were pushed across the border by Pakistan, who also supplied them with rifles and ammunition. These tribals, according to Pakistan, had come to the rescue of the people of Poonch.
- 4 Muslims from Poonch were challenging the rule of the Maharaja of Kashmir. On 14 August 1947, they hoisted the Pakistani flag.

1947 WAR

- 5 Very soon dozens of Poonch men had equipped themselves with rifles obtained from informal sources in Pakistan.
- 6 Within Poonch, Muslim officials and soldiers had left their jobs in the state administration and joined the rebels.
- 7 These tribes further moved to other areas like Muzzafarbad and Kishanganga. The British governor, Sir George Cunningham, did not care about the situation.
- 8 On 24 October, when the tribes reached Baramula, Maharaj Hari Singh asked India for military assistance.

INSTRUMENT OF ACCESSION

- 1 At this juncture, Lord Mountbatten mentioned that according to international law, India could send its army to Kashmir if the ruler signed an Instrument of Accession with India.
- 2 VP Menon flew to Jammu and got the Instrument of Accession signed from Maharaja.
- 3 Upon signing the agreement, several military aircrafts flew to Srinagar. Pakistan was warned by their advent.
- 4 Hearing the presence of Indian troops in Srinagar, The Pakistani troops were ordered to march into Kashmir.

PEACE WITH PAKISTAN

- 1 On 1 November 1947, Lord Mountbatten went to Lahore on a peace mission and had a meeting with Jinnah.
- 2 Mountbatten suggested that the violence had come from raiders who were Pakistani citizens. Maharaja Hari Singh wanted independence, but was forced to accede to India only after his state was attacked.
- 3 Jinnah countered by saying that the maharaja had brought this upon himself by his ill treatment of Muslims in Poonch.

OPTIONS BEFORE J&K

In a letter to Maharaja Hari Singh, the Indian Prime Minister outlined the various forms a settlement could take.

- 1) There could be a plebiscite for the whole state to decide which dominion it would join.
- 2) The state could survive as an independent entity, with its defence guaranteed by both India and Pakistan.
- 3) A third option was of a partition, with Jammu going to India and the rest of the state to Pakistan.
- 4) A fourth option had Jammu and the Valley staying with India, with Poonch and beyond being ceded to Pakistan.

These four options are being debated even today

INTEGRATION INTO INDIA

JAWAHAR LAL NEHRU

SHEIKH ABDULLAH

- 1 The Indians began to clear other parts of the Valley of infiltrators.
- 2 On 11 November PM Nehru asked Hari Singh to make Sheikh Abdullah the head of the administration.
- 3 According to Mahatma Gandhi as well as PM Nehru, Sheikh Abdullah had become a symbol of secularism and a practitioner of inter-faith harmony refuting the two-nation theory.

POST INDEPENDENCE DEVELOPMENTS

INTERVENTION OF UNITED NATIONS

- 1 On 1 January 1948, India took the Kashmir issue to the United Nations on the advise of Lord Mountbatten.
- 2 Pakistan representative convinced UN Security Council that the occupation of the northern parts of Kashmir by Pakistan was a consequence of tragic riots in 1946-47. It accused India of perpetrating genocide in East Pakistan.
- 3 UNSC altered the dispute from Jammu & Kashmir to Indo-Pak issue.
- 4 Pakistan suggested withdrawal of troops and holding plebiscite. Pakistan had previously rejected Plebiscite in case of Junagarh. They said will of the ruler was to be given importance. India however, referred to will of people.

THE SAD STATE OF J&K

- 1 In 1948, Dras and Kargil were re-captured by Indians but North and West of Kashmir continued to be controlled by Pakistan.
- 2 Special Commission of UN was appointed in Kashmir to visit Delhi, Karachi and Kashmir. PM Nehru was disappointed with UN.
- 3 The issue of Kashmir was not just for the battle of territory but also battle for the idea of India or Pakistan.
- 4 In 1947-48, neither India nor Pakistan managed to control the whole state of Jammu and Kashmir and it hurt both sides.

STILL NO PLEBISCITE

- 1 UN had called for a plebiscite and India and Pakistan had to meet the conditions for holding it.
- 2 In February 1950, UNSC asked both countries to withdraw their armies from the state and thus both states stood at their positions. This became the Line of Control between India and Pakistan. India regretted taking the matter to the UN.
- 3 In 1951, the government thought of holding a plebiscite but JL Nehru was apprehensive of Pakistan's propaganda and the danger of civil upheaval.

So ultimately, the bifurcated state was integrated into India and plebiscite was never held

ARTICLE 370

- 1 By 1950, J&K was treated a part of the Indian Union with special powers under Article 370.
- 2 The President would consult the state with regards to subjects other than defence, foreign affairs and communications.
- 3 Force could not be sent to Kashmir without consent of state capital.
- 4 Residuary powers would be with Kashmir State Assembly instead of Center.
- 5 The non-residents of the state could not buy land or property within Kashmir. It was to stop large scale immigration into the state.

In 1952, the Delhi Agreement was signed whereby Kashmir would have sovereignty in all matters other than those specified in the Instrument of Accession. The new flag of Kashmir was flown alongside Indian flag.

POST INDEPENDENCE DEVELOPMENTS

OPPOSITION IN THE STATE

- 1 In 1949, the Praja Parishad (Peoples' party) was formed to represent the interests of Jammu Hindus.
- 2 It adopted the slogan – 'Ek Vidhan, ek Pradhan, ek nishaan.' (One Constitution, One Head of State and One Flag).
- 3 Praja Parishad wanted to contest elections but when its papers became invalid, Sheikh Abdullah won all the seats in the elections.

HINDUS OF THE STATE

- 1 The Hindus of Jammu were attached to Hari Singh and protested against this agreement in J&K.
- 2 It was disapproved by the Jan Sangh leader Dr Shyama Prasad Mookherjee who spoke of divided loyalty in a sovereign country because of national and provincial flags. The states should be made at par with other states.

BRITISH STAND

AZAD KASHMIR

- 1 The British supported Pakistan.
- 2 Earlier they supported Muslim League and now Pakistan.
- 3 One argument was for placating Muslims across the world after the creation of Israel.
- 4 Pakistan was thought to be a reliable ally against USSR. It could be assessed from British base in Middle East.
- 5 On the other side of Line of Control, Pakistan sponsored a government of Azad Kashmir.

DISPUTE OVER OFFICIAL LANGUAGE

LINGUISTIC REORGANIZATION OF STATES

INDIA'S LANGUAGE

- 1 Constitution makers accepted all major languages as 'languages of India' or Indian national languages.
- 2 But for official work, one language is needed for government functioning and a language for all-India communication.
- 3 Gandhi was opposed to English as he felt there was an unnatural place of English in India because of the unequal relations with the English.
- 4 Hindi was nominated to be the official language as it was considered to be the most widely spoken and understood language in the country.

DEBATE OVER HINDI

हिंदी

~~National Language~~
Official Language
of India

- 1 Nehru Report in 1928 stated that Hindustani would be the common language for India, but English would be continued for some time. Hindustani contained elements of Persian and Urdu and was accepted by people.
- 2 There was a lot of opposition to Hindi and conflict between Hindi and non-Hindi speaking regions of the country.
- 3 They demanded the replacement of English by mother tongue as medium for higher education.

But when communal riots between Hindus and Muslims increased, Hindustani was dropped as the official language as it contained elements of Urdu.

LANGUAGE - ARGUMENTS

IN FAVOUR OF HINDI

- Most spoken language
- People of all metro cities understood Hindi

AGAINST HINDI

- Not a culturally and historically rich language
- South India feared North Indian domination through Hindi

DEBATE OVER HINDI

In 1963, the Official Languages Act was passed which provided that English 'may' still be used for official communication along with Hindi. English would continue as the official language till 1965, after which it would be gradually replaced with Hindi. It said that the government had the duty to promote the spread of Hindi.

The timeline for the shift from English to Hindi differed between regions and consideration was given to the non-Hindi speaking regions. Nehru clarified that an official language would not be imposed on any region of the country and the pace of transition to Hindi would depend upon the non-Hindi speaking people.

HINDI HEGEMONY

Issue arose when instead of waiting till 1965, the transition started immediately.

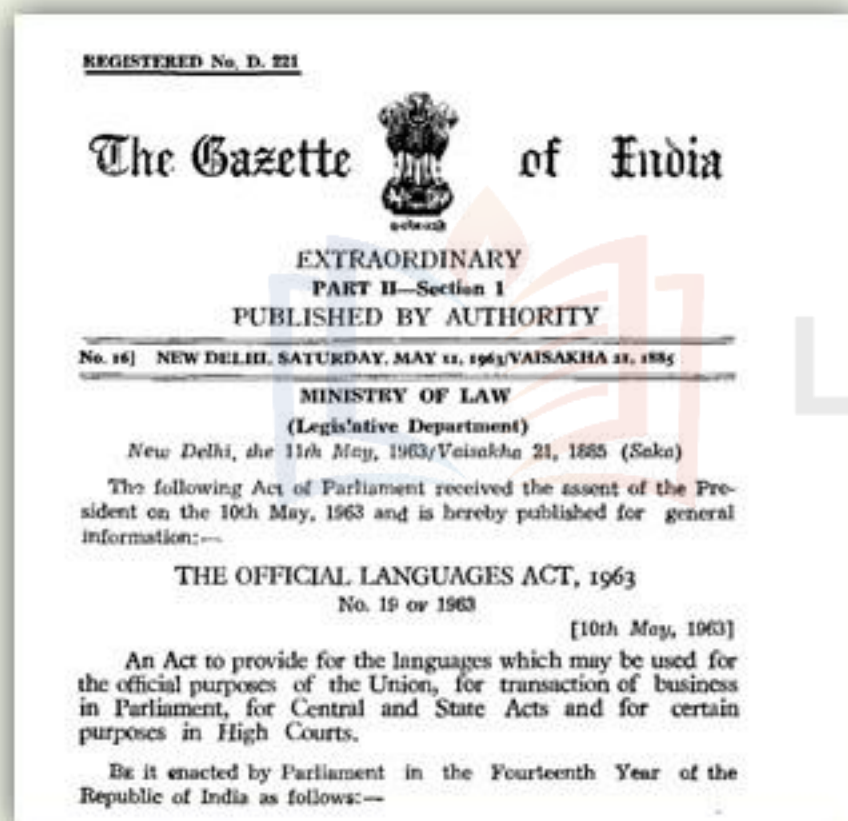

1 In 1956, the Academy of Tamil Culture under the guidance of Dravida Munnetra Kazhagam (DMK) and leaders like CN Annadurai, EV Ramaswami and C Rajagopalachari passed a resolution urging that English should continue as the official language and the language for communication between the Central and State governments in India.

2 In the wake of the China war, DMK led by CN Annadurai withdrew its demands for a separate state but wanted the protection of its language and culture.

3 They were opposed to the imposition of Hindi as the official language as they felt it was less suited to development of science and technology and that it did not have any special merit.

OFFICIAL LANGUAGE ACT

1 In 1965, the fifteen-year 'grace period' of using the English language along with Hindi ended and Hindi was to become the official language of India. But this was not acceptable to some of the Southern States.

2 In 1965, the use of the word 'may' in the Official Languages Act was questioned.

- 4 On 26 January 1965, two men set themselves on fire in Madras. Similar suicides took place in the subsequent days.
- 5 The intensity of the anti-Hindi protests disturbed the government.
- 6 Several Congress leaders like S. Nijalingappa, Atulya Ghosh, Sanjeeva Reddy and K. Kamaraj were of the opinion that making Hindi the official language in haste would affect the unity of the country.
