CASE OF TWO ADULTS

RAVI

- ✓ Ravi learned to play cricket by playing with his father.
- ✓ He was criticised, chastised and ridiculed by his Father as they practised.
- ✓ It influenced Ravi's enthusiasm, self-belief and other personal attributes.

ROHAN

- ✓ Rohan also learned to play cricket by playing with his father.
- ✓ He was supported, encouraged and rewarded by his father as they practised.
- ✓ It influenced his enthusiasm, self-belief and other personal attributes.

As adults, both of them described respect or trust as core values, but the experiences that shaped their opinions are drastically different.

Usually positive values are known as virtues and negative values as vices. Values are more the theory, virtues/vices are more the reality. Values are in principle, virtues/vices are conformity with principle.

WHAT ARE VALUES?

M. HARALAMBOS

Values guide human lives and are essential for positive human actions or behaviour.

“A value is a belief that something is good and desirable”: M. Haralambos.

“Values are socially approved desires and goals that are internalised through the process of conditioning, learning or socialisation and that become subjective preferences, standards and aspirations”: R K Mukerjee.

Values are broad preferences concerning appropriate courses of actions or outcomes.

WHAT ARE VALUES?

"The man who never alters his opinion is like standing water, and breeds reptiles of the mind."

- William Blake

Value denotes the degree of importance of some thing or action, with the aim of determining what actions are best to do or what way is best to live or to describe the significance of different actions.

Some values are universally valid, some are embedded in a culture, whereas many values are subject to dynamic development and alteration.

Universally valued: life, health, love, wellbeing, security, social recognition.

Culture dependent: : freedom, autonomy, democracy, authority, duty, self-control, material welfare, sexual equality

Values are collective conceptions of what is considered good, desirable and proper or bad, undesirable and improper in a culture.

WHAT ARE VALUES?

Aesthetic value is the value that an object, event or state of affairs possesses in virtue of its capacity to elicit pleasure or displeasure when appreciated or experienced aesthetically.

The value of a thing comes from either because something is desired or approved, because it has a value or a thing has a value because it is desired.

Values do influence attitudes and behavior including the types ethical or moral values, religious, political or ideological values, social values, and aesthetic values.

Values guide human lives and are essential for positive human actions or behaviour and are formed based on the desires, wants or choices.

WHAT ARE VALUES?

Primary Values

- Trustworthiness
- Respect
- Caring
- Responsibility
- Justice
- Fairness
- Civic Virtue

Secondary Values

- Religious Beliefs
- Professional or Business Standards
- Cultural Traditions
- Political Philosophy

Value systems are proscriptive and prescriptive beliefs; they affect ethical behavior of a person or are the basis of their intentional activities.

Often primary values are strong and secondary values are suitable for changes. What makes an action valuable may in turn depend on the ethical values of the objects it increases, decreases or changes.

An object with "ethic value" may be termed an "ethic or philosophic good".

Proscriptive: restricting, forbidding, denouncing or condemning something

1. Values are often vaguely defined by an individual and are defined in terms of concepts.
2. Values are different states of intentionality when activated, guide behaviour and create meaning.
3. Values tend to change as needs and circumstances change.
4. Most of the basic values are learnt early in life from family, friends, neighbourhood, school, the media and other sources within the society.
5. Values may be specific or general such as health, love and democracy.
6. Value systems can be different from culture to culture. Values can also be different for each person.
7. We use 'values or self-awareness' to evaluate the appropriateness of our behavior as well as the behaviour of others.
8. Values may either be inculcated through learning or adopted as a result of life experiences.

A person may value honesty while another may value wealth. A person may value obedience and another may value freedom.

TYPES OF VALUES

ETHICS, INTEGRITY & APTITUDE

TYPES OF VALUES

BROAD CLASSIFICATION OF VALUES

INDIVIDUAL VALUES

Values which are related with the development of human personality or individual norms of recognition and protection of the human personality such as honesty, loyalty, honour etc.

COLLECTIVE VALUES

Values connected with the solidarity of the community or collective norms of equality, justice, solidarity and sociableness are known as collective values.

ETHICS, INTEGRITY & APTITUDE

TYPES OF VALUES

ON THE BASIS OF HIERARCHICAL ARRANGEMENT

TERMINAL VALUES

Terminal Values are those things that we can work towards or we think are most important and we feel are most desirable – terminal values are desirable states of existence.

Example: happiness, self-respect, family security, recognition, freedom, inner harmony, comfortable life, professional excellence etc.

INSTRUMENTAL VALUES

Instrumental Values are core values, permanent in nature, comprise personal characteristics and character traits. Instrumental Values refer to preferable modes of behaviour.

Example: honesty, sincerity, ambition, independence, obedience, imaginativeness, and also some negative traits.

ON THE BASIS OF ORGANIZATIONAL SETTING / ORGANIZATIONAL VALUES

RELATIONSHIP VALUES

Relationship values reflect how you relate to other people in your life, i.e. friends, family or colleagues in the organisation.

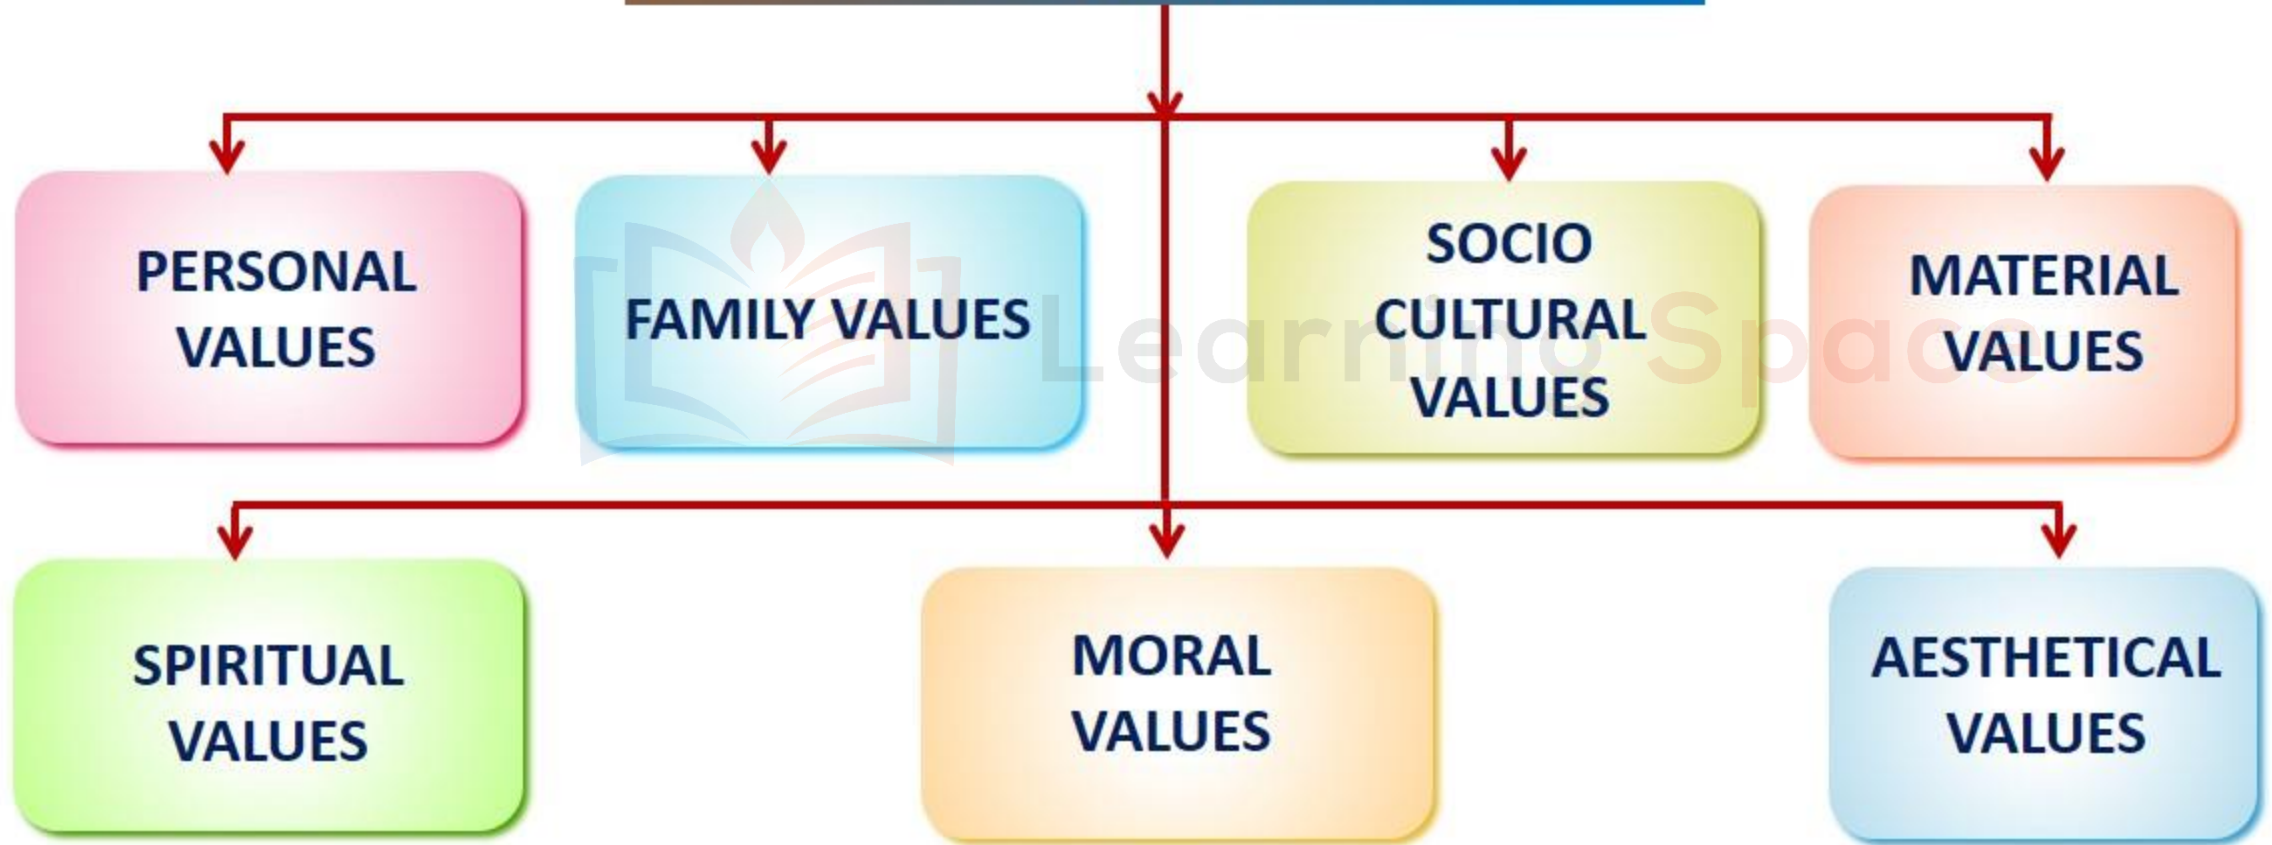

SOCIETAL VALUES

Societal values reflect how the individual or the organisation relates to society.

ETHICS, INTEGRITY & APTITUDE

TYPES OF VALUES

ON THE BASIS OF THE NATURE OF VALUES

TYPES OF VALUES

FAMILY VALUES

MATERIAL VALUES

- 1 Personal values are the values endorsed by an individual.
- 2 Family values are the principles valued in a family, and may be good or bad.
- 3 Social – cultural values are centred on what a culture believes is fair and just. These are the prevailing values of the society which change with time and either coincide or not with the family or personal values.
- 4 Material values allow an individual to survive and are related to the basic needs of human beings, such as food, clothing and protection from the environment.

TYPES OF VALUES

SPIRITUAL VALUES

MORAL VALUES

5 Spiritual Values are how you represent what you believe in when it comes to religion / spirituality. Spiritual values are the way you believe in your own god.

6 Moral values are the attitudes and behaviours that a society considers essential for coexistence, order, and general wellbeing of the society.

7 Aesthetic value is the value that an object, event or state of affairs (mostly an art work or the natural environment) possesses in virtue of its capacity to elicit pleasure (positive value) or displeasure (negative value) when appreciated or experienced aesthetically.
