ETHICS, INTEGRITY & APTITUDE

CASE STUDIES

MODULE - 5

CASE STUDY - 5

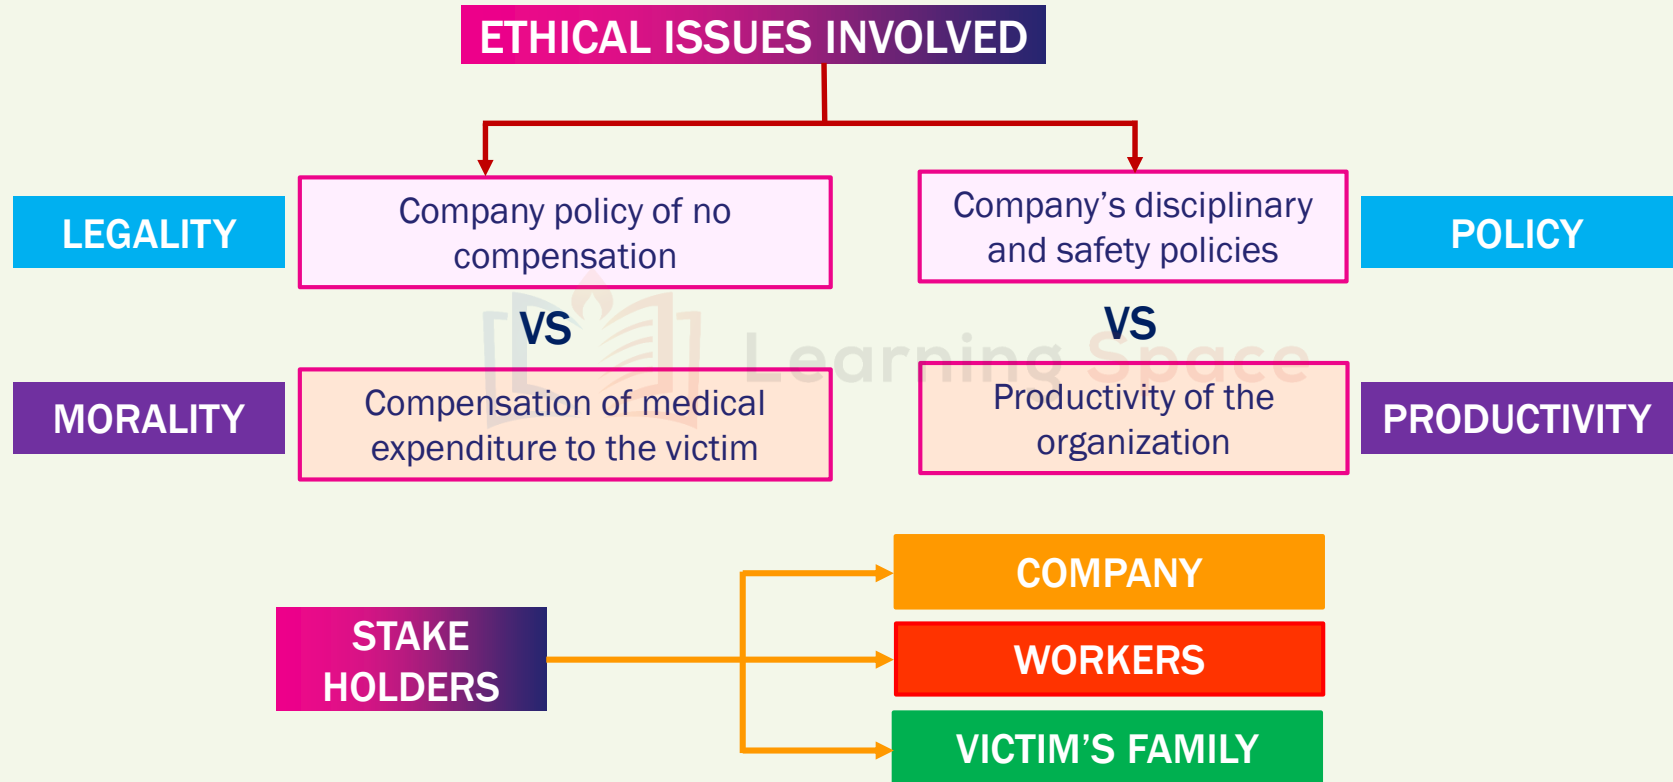

You are the floor in charge of an automobile manufacturing plant. As it is mandatory for all the workers to take safety measures, the organisation provides all the personal safety equipment including safety helmets, gloves, goggles and safety shoes to all the employees. You have noticed that a couple of workers, despite repeated reminders, are not wearing the safety equipment. All such employees are already warned in writing by the management about the dangers and the non-culpability of the organisation in case they meet with an accident. One such worker A, the sole bread winner of his family, met with an accident at work and is hospitalised in a critical condition. As the family cannot afford to pay for the treatment, they pleaded with you to help them by recommending the organisation to bear the medical expenditure. The worker's union even threatened to resort to strike if the family's demands are not met.

- a) If you sanction their request, you are condoning the behaviour of flouting the rules by not wearing safety equipment. It may lead to more workers breaking the rules and putting themselves in possible danger.
- b) If you do not sanction their request, the family may lose its sole bread winner.

*Justify the option you will opt for. Recommend steps to prevent the recurrence of such incidents.

CASE STUDIES

This case reflects the real time incidents of flouting of rules by the workers, strong worker unions threatening efficient functioning of organisations because of rigid labour laws and the organisations being forced to support the workers.

CASE STUDIES

OPTIONS GIVEN

CASE STUDIES

OPTION TO SOLVE THE ISSUE

Immediately declare the strike illegal. Threaten workers of consequences if they don't join duties immediately.

Tell workers that company is not legally bound to bear any medical expenditure and the worker didn't wear safety equipment despite warning.

- But company has decided to compensate medical expenditure on ethical and moral grounds as one time exception to rules of the company.

LONG TERM MEASURES TO PREVENT RECURRENCE OF SUCH EVENTS

- Establish strict enforceable code of conduct for workers
- Link the workers wages to abiding to code of conduct
- Regular inspection at work place to check whether workers wear safety equipment
- Come up with code of ethics to promote positive values among workers

CONCLUSION

Creating a sense of togetherness (spirit de corps) and mutual trust between the workers and the organization is the key for progress of any organization.
