MUGHAL DYNASTY

BABUR (1526-1530 AD)

- 1 Founder of Mughal Empire, Zahir-ud-din Muhammad Babur
- 2 Worthy descendant of Timur, the Turk (father's side), and Chengiz Khan (mother's side) He became the Sultan of Farghana (Afghanistan) at an early age of 12, when his father Sultan Umar Shaikh Mirza had died.
- 3
 - He was soon deprived of his kingdom by a distant relative with the aid of Uzbek king.
 - He established himself first in Kabul (1504 AD) and then pushed steadily southward into India from Afghanistan.

BABUR'S ADVENT TO INDIA

1 He was successful in capturing Bhira (1519-1520 AD), Sialkot (1520 AD), and Lahore (1524 AD) in Punjab.

2 Another reason for Babur to move towards India was the meagre income of Kabul, which was not sufficient to maintain an empire, and his apprehension of an Uzbek attack on Kabul.

3 ■ Thus, he considered India to be a good place to find refuge and develop a suitable base for operations against the Uzbeks.
■ The unstable political situation in India after Sikandar Lodhi's death further aided in his entry.

4 He was invited to fight against Ibrahim Lodhi by Daulat Khan Lodhi (Governor of Punjab), and Alam Khan (uncle of Ibrahim Lodhi)

THE FIRST BATTLE OF PANIPAT (1526 AD)

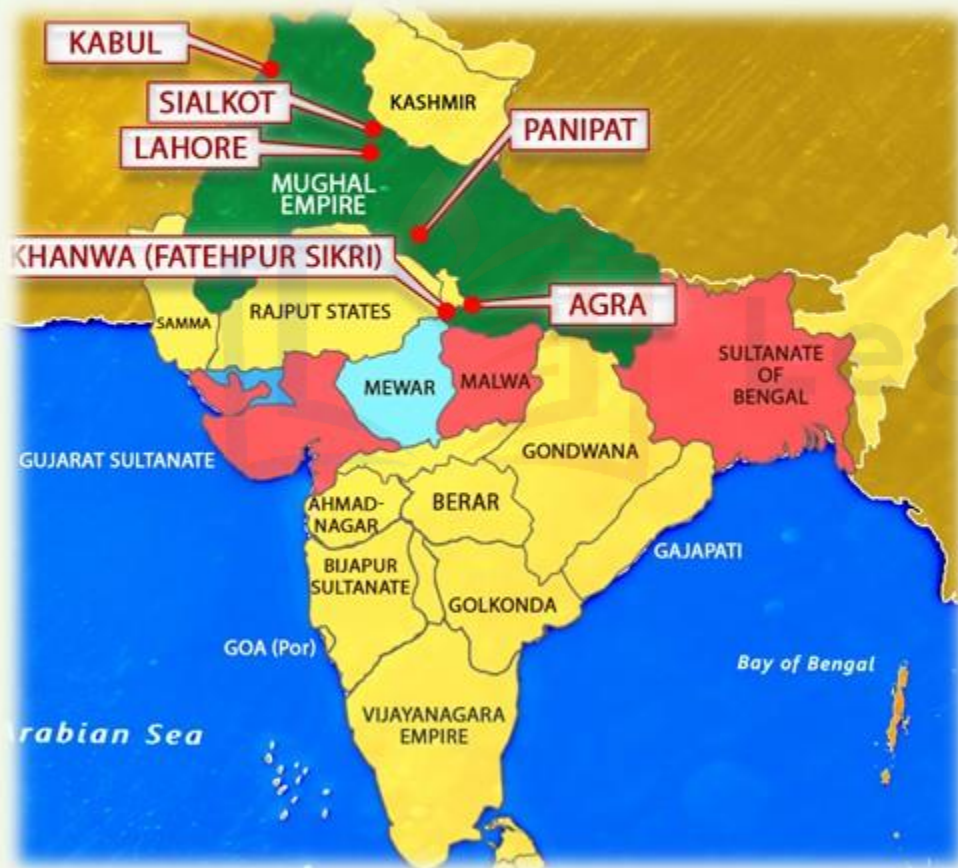

- 1 This was one of the decisive battles of Indian history, fought between Ibrahim Lodhi and Babur.
- 2 Ibrahim Lodhi was defeated and Babur was not only able to take control of Delhi and Agra but also got the rich treasury of Lodhis.
- 3 Babur's soldiers were less in number (only 12,000 soldiers against Lodhi's troops of 100,000 soldiers) but the organisation of his army was far superior.
- 4 Victory was a result of Babur's military tactics. He effectively applied the Rumi (Ottoman) method of warfare, also known as Tuguma system of warfare.

THE FIRST BATTLE OF PANIPAT (1526 AD)

- 5 Babur occupied Delhi and sent his son Humayun to seize Agra. Babur proclaimed himself as the “Emperor of Hindustan”.

NOTE:

On the eve of Babur’s conquest, there were

- 5 prominent Muslim rulers:
 - ✓ Sultans of Delhi, Gujarat, Malwa, Bengal and Deccan;
- 2 prominent Hindu rulers:
 - ✓ Rana Sangha of Mewar and the Vijayanagar Empire.

IMMEDIATE CONCERNS OF BABUR

Victory at Panipat provided Babur a firm ground to consolidate his conquests but at the same time he was faced with new problems:

- 1 His nobles and commanders were eager to return to Central Asia because they did not like the climate of India. They also felt alienated culturally.
- 2 The Rajputs were rallying around under the leadership of Rana Sanga, the king of Mewar, and wanted to expel the Mughal forces.
- 3 The Afghans, though defeated at Panipat, were still a formidable force in eastern parts of UP, Bihar, and Bengal. They were re-grouping to reclaim their lost powers.

WHAT TRANSPIRED

- 1 ■ Babur convinced his companions and nobles to stay back and help in consolidating the conquered territories.
 - They were either promised great wealth or powerful positions.
- 2 The nobles who were not inclined towards staying back were allowed to go back to Kabul

RANA SANGA FACTOR

- 1 The Rana had expected Babur to return to Kabul, and his decision to remain in India was a big jolt to Rana Sanga's territorial ambitions. Thus, battle between the two became inevitable.

BATTLE OF KHANWA (1527 AD)

- 1 Khanwa (near Fatehpur Sikri)
- 2 One of the most fiercely contested battles in Indian history, fought between Babur and Rana Sanga of Mewar and his allies.
- 3 Babur declared the war against Rana Sanga to be a jihad
- 4 Rana Sanga was defeated and Babur's position in the Delhi-Agra region was secured.

BATTLE OF KHANWA (1527 AD)

5 Rana Sanga of Mewar enjoyed the support of a large number of Rajput chiefs, along with

- ✓ Raja Medini Rai of Chanderi in Malwa,
- ✓ Hasan Khan of Mewat, and
- ✓ Mahmud Lodhi, the younger son of Sikander Lodhi.

6 Babur adopted the title of Ghazi after the victory.

7 Babur strengthened his position further by conquering the chain of forts in Gwalior, Dholpur, east of Agra, and large parts of Alwar from Hasan Khan Mewati.

BABUR (1526-1530 AD)

BATTLE OF CHANDERI (1528 AD)

- 1 This battle was fought between Babur and Medini Rai, the Rajput ruler of Malwa.
- 2 In spite of the great valour with which the Rajputs fought, Babur faced little difficulty in overcoming Medini Rai.
- 3 With his defeat, resistance across Rajputana was completely shattered.
- 4 However, Babur had to, cut short his plan of further campaigns in the area due to growing disturbances of the Afghans in eastern Uttar Pradesh.

BATTLE OF GHAGRA (1529 AD)

- 1 Ghagra (near Bihar).
- 2 This battle was fought between Babur and Mahmud Lodhi (brother of Ibrahim Lodhi, head of the Afghan chiefs).
- 3 Mahmud Lodhi was supported by Nusrat Shah of Bengal

NOTE

- The Afghans had surrendered Delhi, but they were still powerful in the east (Bihar and parts of Jaunpur).
- Although Babur compelled the Bengal and the Afghan armies to retreat, he could not win a decisive victory.

SIGNIFICANCE OF BABUR'S ADVENT INTO INDIA

- 1 Security from external invasions from north-west frontier
 - For the first time after the downfall of the Kushana Empire, 'Kabul and Gandhar' became integral parts of the Mughal Empire.
 - This meant:
 - a) It strengthened Trans-Asian foreign trade
 - ✓ As these two cities were the starting points for caravans meant for China in the east and the Mediterranean seaports in the west)
 - b) Secured North- West Frontier
 - ✓ As they were the staging places for invasions.

BABUR (1526-1530 AD)

SIGNIFICANCE OF BABUR'S ADVENT INTO INDIA

- 2 Established an all-India Empire by breaking the power of the Rajput Confederacy.
- 3
 - Introduced new mode of warfare and led to the popularisation of gun powder, cavalry, and artillery in India.
 - Although gunpowder was used earlier too in India, it is Babur who popularised its use.
- 4 Re-established the authority of the king in Delhi, which had been unstable and non uniform across different Sultans of Delhi Sultanate and had seen continuous erosion since the death of Firoz Shah Tughlaq.
