MODERN HISTORY

PORTUGUESE INITIAL PHASE

VASCO DA GAMA

Vasco da Gama's expedition was successful beyond all reasonable expectation, bringing in cargo that was worth sixty times the cost of the expedition.

4

But his journey could not establish a long term trade due to following factors

- ✓ Gifts brought by Vasco for Zamorin was of poor quality, which was not liked by zamorin.
- ✓ Arabs told Zamorin that Vasco is pirate not royal ambassador.

Later In 1502, Vasco returned to India and this time, he was able to get some favor from local rulers .

MODERN HISTORY

PEDRO CABRAL

1 Later in 1500, Pedro Cabral a Portuguese voyager, made some fruitful treaties with the rulers of Kozhikode and Cannanore and was successful in establishing first Portuguese factory at Calicut (first in Asia).

PEDRO CABRAL

2 However, he had to fight with the Arabs in Battle of Calicut, in the efforts of creating a niche for Portuguese.

MODERN HISTORY

BATTLE OF CALICUT, 1501

FOUGHT BETWEEN

ARAB MERCHANTS

PORTUGUESE

REASONS

- Initially Arab merchants monopolised the trade
- When Portuguese establish their first factory at Calicut, they came in conflict with Arab merchants.
- This led to the battle between them.

OUTCOME

- Portuguese captured vessels of Arab Merchants and killed their crew.
- Arab merchants in retaliation burned down the trading port and killed several Portuguese.
- This was the humiliating defeat for Portuguese on Indian soil.

Later, in 1502, Vasco da Gama again revisited India, he demanded that the Zamorin should expel all the Muslim merchants settled there. But Zamorin rejected the demand and the port of Calicut was open to all. Vasco da Gama answer was a brutal assault on Calicut.

Muslim
Alliance

FOUGHT BETWEEN

REASONS

PORTUGUESE GOVERNOR,
FRANCISCO DE ALMEIDA

MUSLIM ALLIANCE

*Sultan of Gujarat+ Egypt+
Zamorin of Calicut.*

OUTCOME

Commercial reasons:

- ✓ Diu was the critical outpost in the overall spice trade from India.
- ✓ Portuguese attempt to establish trade with India required breaking of strong Muslim alliance.

Personal reasons:

- ✓ In the previous skirmishes ALMEIDA lost his son. So he wanted to take revenge.

- This marked the beginning of European naval power over the Asian seas.
- Portuguese victory was critical as it got the hold of Indian ocean trade route via cape of good hope by circumventing the traditional route which was dominated by merchants of Arab.

Fort Diu was taken over in 1537 and ruled till 1961 i.e. 424 years, which marks the longest rule of a colonial power in the world.

During his term, Vasco Da Gama visited to India for the third time.

PORTUGUESE CONQUEST OF BOMBAY AND BASSIEN

BACKGROUND STORY

1

Bahadur Shah of Gujarat wanted to expand his empire. After the death of Rana sanga of Mewar, he marched towards Chittorgarh fort.

2

Rana sangha's wife Rani karmavathi sent rakhi (holy thread) to Humayan and requested for help. But Humayun could not reach on time.

3

Meanwhile, Chittorgarh was seized and Rani Karmavathi performed johar. Later, when Bahadur Shah lost to Mughal army he requested help from Portuguese.

PORTUGUESE CONQUEST OF BOMBAY AND BASSIEN

4

In 1534, he signed a treaty with Portuguese, Treaty of Bassein with Nuno da Cunha, by offering port of Bassein and the seven islands of Bombay.

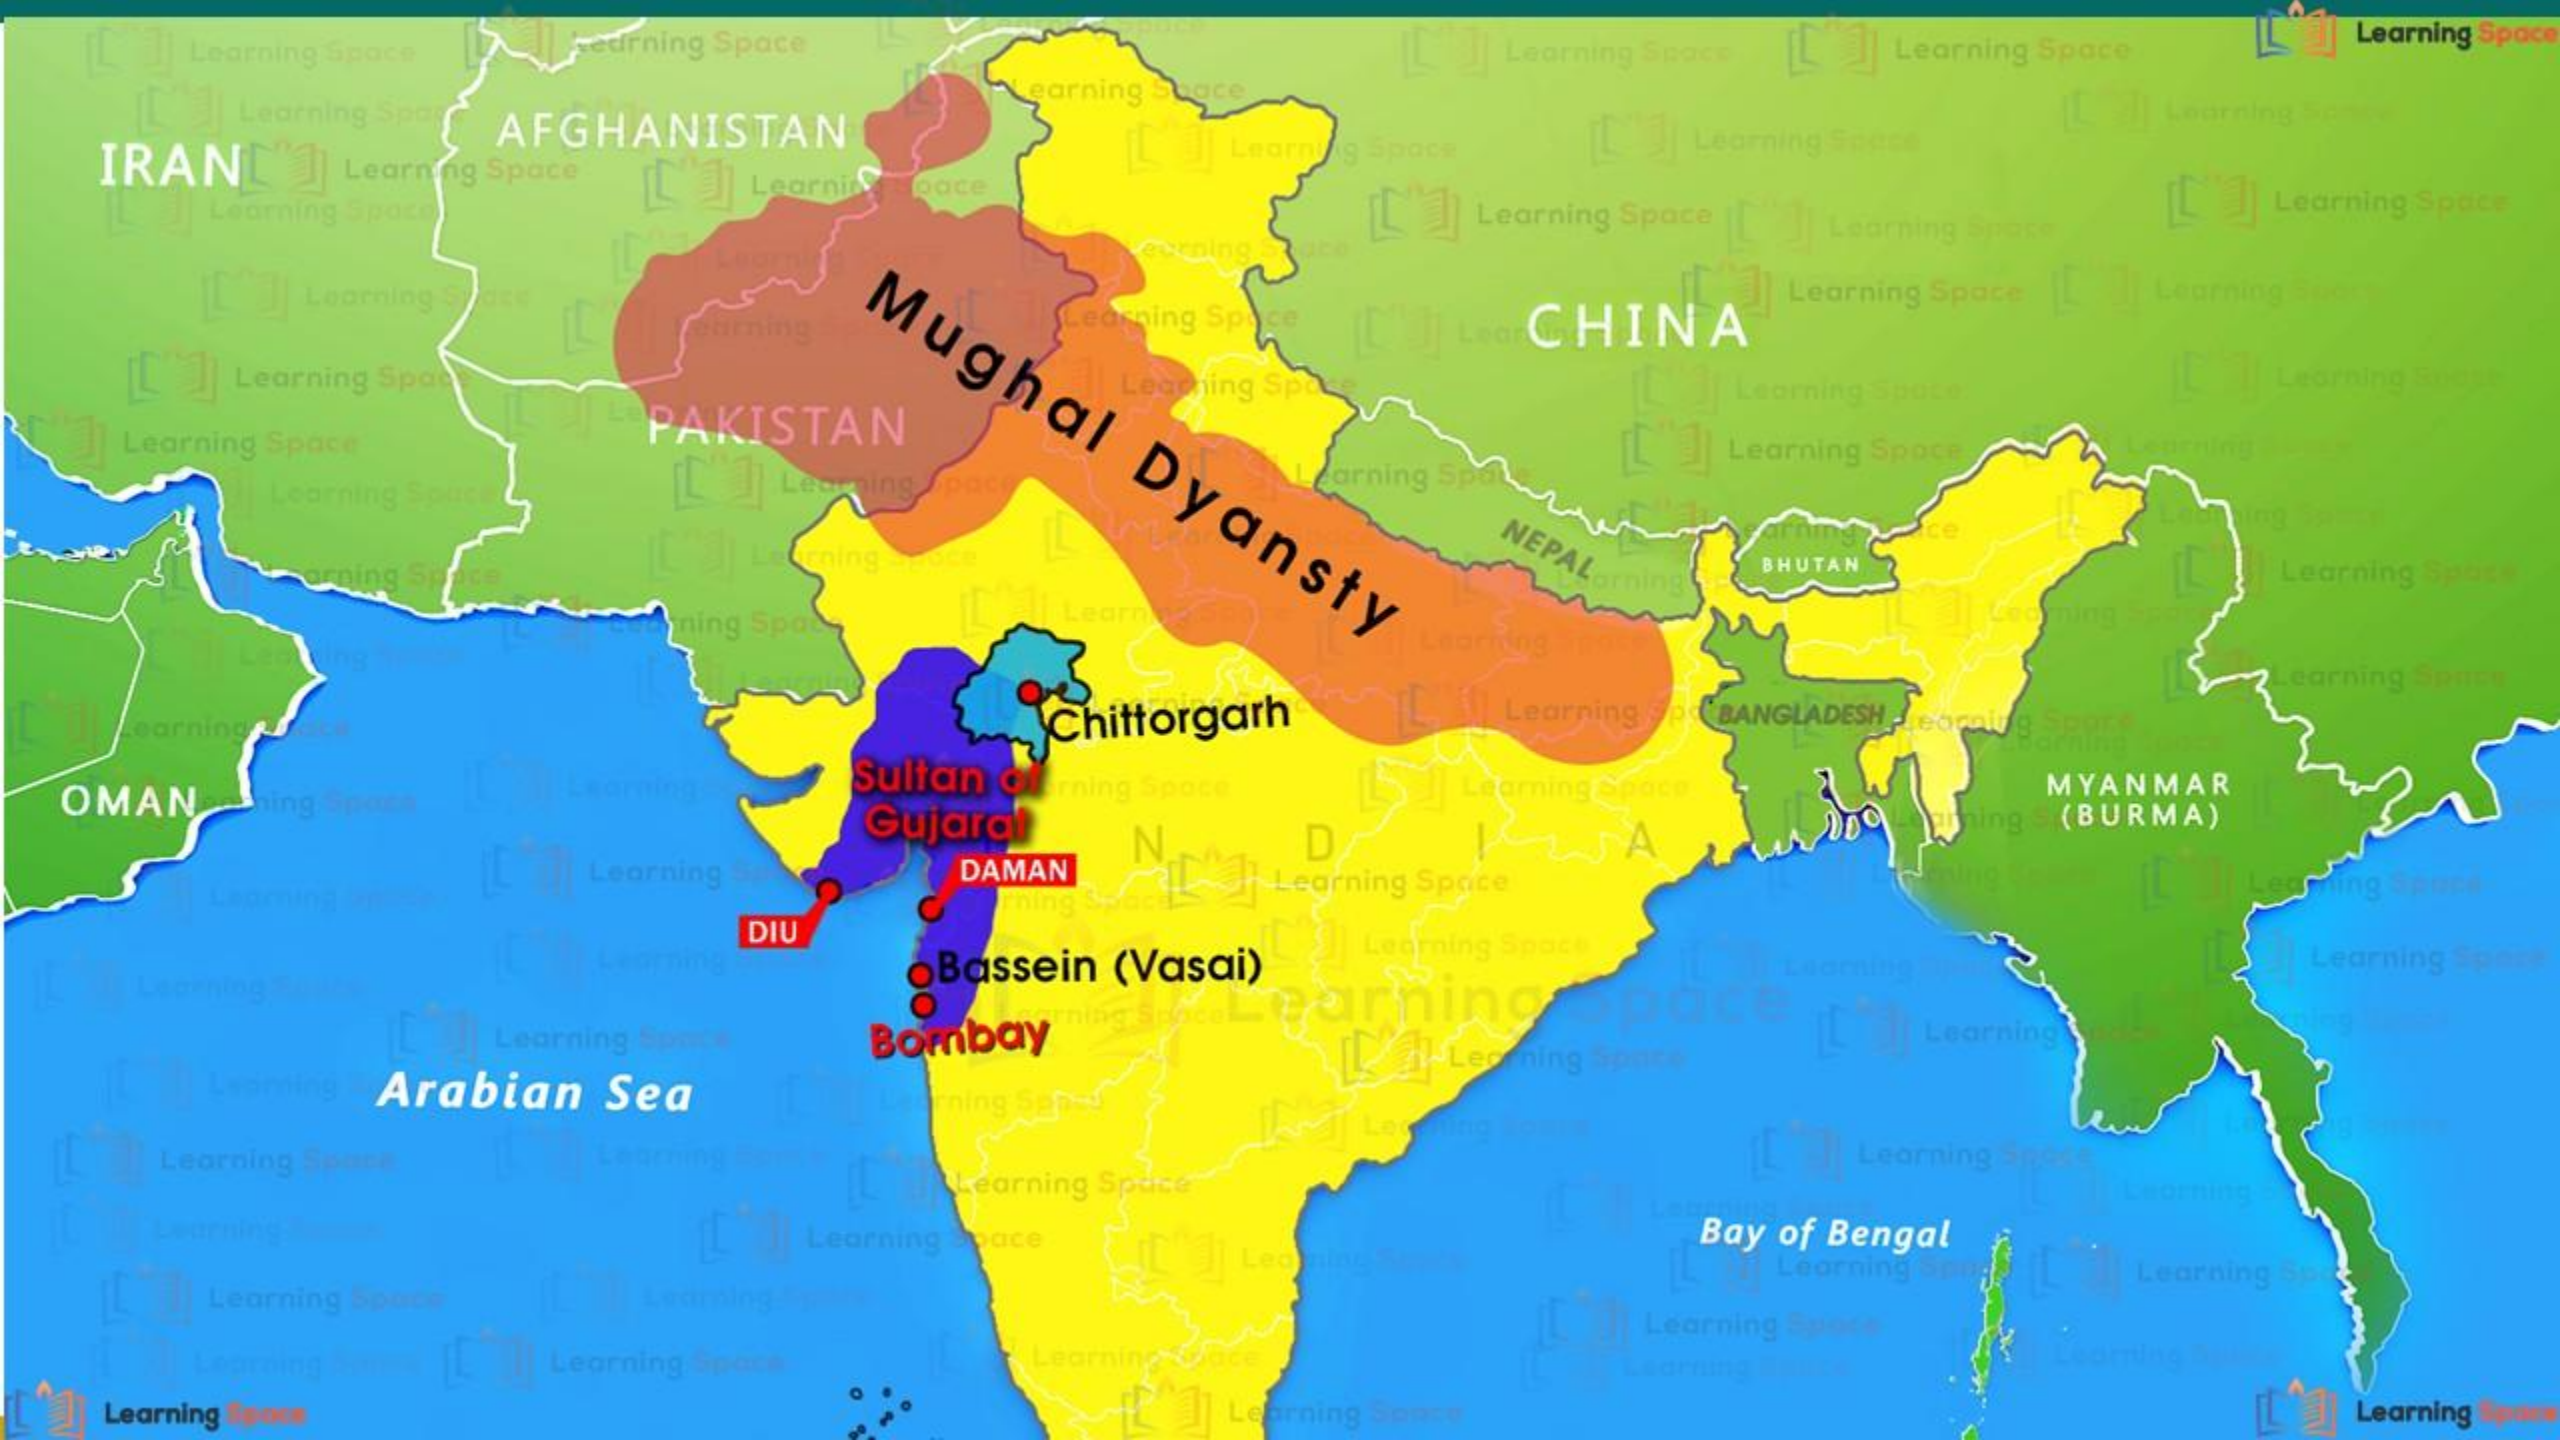

5

- But people protested against Portuguese rule for their activities (piracy, religious conversion).
- Meanwhile, Bahadur Shah recovered his kingdom from Mughals. So he wanted to raise a wall of Partition.

6

But Portuguese opposed it, and plotted a plan where the ruler of Gujarat was invited to a Portuguese ship and was killed in 1537. (example of betrayal)

IMPORTANCE OF THESE PORTS

BASSEIN

- Bassein, is a small coastal town north of Mumbai.
- It was a maritime hub with extensive shipping and ship building activities, and brought Christian culture to the Bombay.
- It was second most important place after Goa.
- It had a great strategic value for the Portuguese in maintaining their command of the Arabian sea and for protecting the northern flank of Bombay.

BOMBAY

- Strategic importance:
 - ✓ Fortifications like the Bombay Castle.
 - ✓ Recognized its strategic natural harbour and its natural isolation from land-attacks.
- Religious importance:
 - ✓ Spread Roman catholic religious orders in Bombay.
 - ✓ Built several churches

Later Bombay was handed over to British government by Portuguese as dowry to Prince Charles II. English East India Company bought it under lease from British Government. Bombay later became main trading center and seat of British Presidency.
